Graves Outlines Some Policies for A Small College

Commissioner Graves Delivers Interesting Address to Alumni Association of St. Stephen's College—Pays High Tribute to St. Stephen's.

Annandale-on-Hudson, N. Y., March 7.—That most American colleges have no definite idea of what they are trying to do in educating their students and that as a result American, higher education is amorphous, chaotic and inchoate" was the contention of Commissioner Frank P. Graves of the Department of Education of New York State, in an address delivered here to the Alumni Association of St. Stephen's College. Dr. Graves spoke on "Some Policies for a Small College" and his address was occasioned by the somewhat unconventional educational program lately announced by President Bernard I. Bell of St. Stephen's College. Dr. Graves in part said as follows:

"The chief distinction about this college of yours is that it knows exactly what it is intending to do. President Butler of Columbia has told us that, out of the one hundred or more universities in this country, only five ever had any real goal, either at their inception or since, and that the rest have grown up without aim by accretions—much according to whatsoever features have happened to appeal to various freakish benefactors. This is even more true of the smaller independent colleges. One may count upon the fingers of one hand those who have ever possessed a definite goal, fundamental principles of control and methods tending to make those principles a reality. If college graduates arrive at effectiveness and distinction it is more because of happy accident and because the material that comes up to college is good than by virtue of the college training. It is an innovation for a college to hold, as St. Stephen's does, that it ought to decide in advance just what it wishes to accomplish and to take thought how this may effectively be done.

"St Stephen's is also unique in its emphasis upon hard intellectual labor as the chief principle controlling its training. This seems a novel goal in the twentieth century, where the main objects of college training are conceived by the populace to be victorious athletic teams, an ability to perform the Black Bottom or to execute initiation stunts or hold extravagant social affairs in fraternity houses. Does this sound jaundiced and pessimistic? It should not. Eventually the colleges must work their way out of the present confusion They have done so before and will again. St. Stephen's is one of the few colleges which is pointing the way. The solution can only come through a clear definition of an intellectual goal and an intention to insist upon matters of first importance taking the first place in college life.

"In order that intellectual labor may be made effective and interesting students must be set on fire by instructors who do not confine their efforts to formal instruction in class rooms but who bring their pupils into constant contact with intellectual things through informal relations on the campus, on the field, and in their own lodgings. The very spirit of the tutorial system has been realized in St. Stephen's. The opportunities for such guidance can nowhere be better developed than in an environment like that at Annandale, removed from extraneous distraction. A number of colleges have adopted the tutorial policy, but in no other is it more fully developed or more frankly avowed than at St. Stephen's. The result has been that when your honors students have entered upon graduate study, it has been found that they have completed usually the equivalent of a full year of advanced work. That is to say, within the four years of undergraduate honors training, five years of actual work may easily be accomplished. The same thing ought to be true at other colleges.

"All this makes for the development not of mediocrity and uniformity but of leadership. The importance of leaders, especially at the present time, when we are struggling hard to steer clear of the Scylla of bolshevism and the Carybdis of fascism, is beyond all calculation. If democracy is to be preserved and advanced, it must be through leaders with trained and independent brains. Some colleges must make that their distinct purpose, even if demagogues do accuse them of aristocracy and exclusiveness.

"If educational benefactors generally can only come to appreciate what this adventure in educational sanity at Annandale means to democracy and the common welfare, they will open their purses wide and give with generosity."

Arrested for Intoxication.

Deputy Sheriff Charles McCullough brought Robert Barnett to the Ulster county jail Sunday evening from East Kingston. Barnett was helplessly intoxicated and will be arraigned after being presentable before Judge Walter Webber in the town of Ulster.

Weiner Hose Card Party.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of Weiner Hose Company No. 4, will hold a card party in their rooms in the Central Fire Station on Monday evening, March 21, at 8 o'clock. The public is invited.

Kills His Wife, Then Shoots Self

Aloysius Joseph After Killing His Wife Calls For Priest To Administer Last Rites and Then Shoots Himself Through Temple.

New York, March 7 (AP).—Aroused from his slumbers by the ringing of the rectory bell early today, Father John J. Sheridan, of St. Raphael's Church, found Aloysius Joseph, 26, a taxicab driver, on his doorstep.

"Father," said Joseph, "I have just shot my wife. Get dressed and come with me. I want you to give her the last rites."

Father Sheridan accompanied the man to his home in West 49th street, and found the wife lying on the floor in the kitchen, dead.

"I can do nothing for her now," said the priest, at which Joseph drew a pistol from his pocket and shot himself through the temple. He was taken under arrest to Bellevue Hospital where he was said to be in a serious condition. The couple had been married two years.

Anthony Joseph, brother of Aloysius, told police the couple had been estranged. Police believe the husband persuaded the woman to return home last night and shot her when she would not agree to a reconciliation

Fruit Growers To Discuss Pests

Ulster County Farm Bureau to Hold Important Community Meeting at Highland on March 12.

Professor P. J. Parrott, chief of the entomology research division of the New York State Agricultural Station at Geneva, N. Y., will be the principal speaker at an all day community meeting at Highland on March 12. The high school at Highland will be the place of gathering for the discussion of the important insect pests of fruit in the Hudson valley. The meeting will be divided into two sessions opening at 10:30 a. m until 12:30 p. m. at which time the apple maggot and cherry maggot will be discussed; 12:30 p. m. to 1:30 p. m. will be lunch hour, and then from 1:30 p. m. until closing, the utility of oil sprays, controlling codling moth and other apple pests, pear psylla and thrips and other pests will be taken up.

This is the most important fruit meeting to be held in the county this winter at which insect pests and diseases will be discussed and should prove very instructive to all fruit growers in the county.

Opportunity will be given for questions on any phase of the subject and it is hoped that all interested will take advantage of this occasion and be present with lots of questions to ask.

The Spray Service Assistant, A. M. Boyce, will be present and is desirous of becoming acquainted with as many of the members as possible at this meeting.

Arrest Ten More Golfers on Sunday

An Alleged Seller of Cigarettes and Soft Drinks Also Arrested Charged With Violating Carolina's Century-Old Sunday Closing Laws.

Columbia, S. C., March 7 (AP).—Arrest of ten more golfers and an alleged seller of cigarettes and soft drinks has given the courts another opportunity to interpret South Carolina's century-old Sunday closing laws, a row over which had developed because of an Aiken jurist's order enjoining their enforcement.

The third attempt to enforce the archaic laws since Governor Richards's order to state officers to see to it that they were observed resulted in additional arrests yesterday. Three golfers already had been acquitted for playing on Sunday.

The ten players were arrested at Camden, while Fred S. Amar, cafe proprietor, was taken into custody here by a constable who charged one of his under cover men had purchased cigarettes and soft drinks at the cafe. The eleven men were to be given hearings today.

Meanwhile, Governor Richards has taken stern objection to the injunction granted by Judge Hayne F. Rice at Aiken enjoining enforcement of the laws there against Sunday golf players. He said he would take the case to the state supreme court for a "speedy decision."

Under protection of Judge Rice's order, granted at the request of Thomas Hitchcock of New York, winter residents and others played golf at the Palmetto and High Park clubs outside the city limits of Aiken yesterday. When four constables attempted to enforce the law, they were served with the temporary restraining order. The judge previously had warned that such arrests would involve the officers in contempt proceedings.

TWO FIREMEN INJURED IN BINGHAMTON FIRE.

Binghamton, N. Y., March 7 (AP).—Fire of undetermined origin today caused $125,000 damage to a five-story brick building occupied by the E. A. Sweet Company, Inc., dealer in leather findings, and the A. B. Haney Electrical Supply Company. Two firemen were injured by falling glass.

Four Men Die for Killing Policeman

Four Die in Electric Chair For Death of Patrolman Harry M. Cooper Without Breaking Down—Would Not Reveal Identity of Fifth Man.

Rockview, Pa., March 7 (AP).—Four men, condemned for killing a policeman in an attempted holdup in Philadelphia last May, paid the penalty with their lives in the electric chair in the western state penitentiary today.

They were Joseph Curry, 29 years; Harry Bentley 23; William Juliano, 27, and Frank Doris, 27, all of Philadelphia.

The men went to their death in the order named, the first being led to the chair at 7 a. m. and the last man was pronounced dead 7:32.

Curry, as he left his cell for the death chamber, called out "good-bye" to the other three who bade him farewell. Beyond this none of the four had anything to say and went to their death without breaking down."

In a last minute interview with their counsel on Saturday, Bentley Juliano made a statement clearing Mathew Overnack from a bank holdup in Westmont, N. J., near Camden, last April. He is serving 10 to 20 years in state prison at Trenton. Bentley and Juliano said there were four men in that holdup, but they declined to name the other two. Their statement will be turned over to Overnack's counsel and the New Jersey authorities.

The crime for which the four men paid the penalty today was committed last May 4. They attempted to hold up William A. Miller, a messenger for the Olney Bank and Trust Company in the northeastern part of Philadelphia. Miller had $80,000 in an automobile and was protected by a policeman. In the fight that followed the robbers managed to get the money and as they were about to drive away their motor car engine was disabled by a pistol shot from a policeman. Leaving the money behind, the robbers commandeered a passing milk wagon and were followed by a policeman and others.

Policeman Harry M. Cooper, off duty and in his home, heard the firing, kissed his wife and baby, ran from the house and joined the search. He jumped on a truck and in the pursuit was shot and killed.

There were five in the robbery. The fifth man was never caught, and the four would not reveal his identity. The four men were given separate trials. Their convictions were affirmed by the state Supreme court, and the board of pardons refused a recommendation of commutation of sentence.

SENOR HURT WHEN CAUGHT BETWEEN LADDER RUNGS.

Charles Senor, an employe of the Kingston Consolidated Railroad, had a narrow escape from breaking both of his legs Sunday morning while at work making repairs to the trolley wires on the Broadway crossing. He was standing on the ladder mounted on the wagon truck when the ladder suddenly slipped and Senor had both legs caught between the rungs. He was released and rushed to the Kingston City Hospital in the city ambulance, where Dr. Daniel Connelly after an examination found that no bones were broken but that the legs were badly lacerated. Later Mr. Senor was removed to his home, No. 119 Moore street.

HELD IN $50,000 THEFTS.

Bookkeeper of Hamilton Press is Accused of Embezzlements.

The New York Times of Sunday says: Charged with the theft of more than $50,000, Leo A. Cummings, 40 years old, of 150 West 194th street, for fifteen years a bookkeeper in the employ of the Hamilton Press of 58 Stone street, was arrested last evening by Detectives Fay and McDonald of the Old Slip Station and locked up at Police Headquarters. The arrest followed an examination of the company's books by public accountants, according to the detectives.

Discrepancies, detectives declared, were found in the payroll records extending over three years. Cummings is charged with having falsified these records, entering totals larger than the actual amounts and pocketing the difference. It was said he had exclusive charge of the records.

The name of George J. Hurst, treasurer of the company, appears in the affidavit as the complainant.

O. E. S. Card Party.

A card party under the auspices of Clinton Chapter, No. 445, Order of the Eastern Star, will be held on Wednesday afternoon, March 16, at 2 o'clock in Masonic Hall, Wall street. Bridge, pinochle and five hundred will be played. Prizes will be awarded and refreshments served. The public is cordially invited.

Millonzi Will Make Movies.

Henry Millonzi, Jr., of 97 Clinton avenue, who is an engineer with the State Highway Department, has purchased a standard professional moving picture camera and will enter into the business of making commercial films and factory demonstration work.

Shot to Death After Tossing Bomb at Church

Police Kill Man In Shadow of Church Spires After He Hurls Bomb at Entrance—Alleged Accomplice, Wounded, Disclaims Connection With Bombing Attempts.

San Francisco, March 7 (AP).—Silence of death and reticence of a wounded man forced police today to look for "higher ups" in their effort to find a motive for the latest attempt to bomb the St Peter and Paul Catholic Church in the Latin quarter here.

The dead man, who has not been identified, and his alleged accomplice, were caught in a police trap early yesterday, one being shot to death in the shadow of the church spires after he had tossed a dynamite bomb at the entrance and fled

It was the fifth attempt in a little more than a year to wreck the church with bombs. The four other efforts resulted in considerable damage but no loss of life. Police think the bombings were the work of fanatics.

While two officers turned their guns on the fleeing men, another officer snatched up the bomb, which was made of 26 sticks of dynamite, and snuffed out the spluttering fuse in time to prevent the explosion.

Charles Moss, alias Celestin Ecklund, the wounded man, disclaimed all connection with the bombing attempt, saying he had come to the church to pray and was not with the dead man Ecklund was shot when, on running from the scene, he reached for his pocket. A policeman opened fire and he dropped with a charge of heavy shot in his leg. It developed that he had been attempting to pull a Bible from his pocket.

Select Sinclair Jury in Two Hours

Twenty-one Veniremen Examined Before Twelve Men Were Chosen for the Trial of Harry F. Sinclair on Contempt Charge.

Washington, March 7 (AP)—Selection of a jury for the trial of Harry F. Sinclair, oil magnate, on a charge of contempt of the Senate in refusing to answer certain questions in the Teapot Dome investigation, required only two hours today in District of Columbia Supreme court.

The taking of testimony was delayed until tomorrow, however, government counsel announcing that their witnesses had been summoned for that time.

Twenty-one veniremen were examined before the twelve men who are to hear the case finally were chosen. Three failed to qualify at the outset, two announcing they had formed opinions and the third informing the court he had served on the grand jury which indicted Sinclair for contempt.

After the box had been filled the first time, counsel for defense and for the government used up the three preemptory challenges allowed to them. Two negroes qualified but one was challenged by the defense and the other by the government.

The jury as finally selected averages 44 years in age. Two are only 25 years old while two others have passed the sixty mark. The jurors are:

C. C. Bell, 61, street car motorman.

Raymond J. Thom, 36, electrician.

Albert Vanderloo, 25, real estate salesman.

James R. Cuff, 34, butcher.

Emory R. Irvin., 33, electrical contractor.

Joseph D. Snelling, 41, cigar salesman.

Charles F. Green, 25, railway clerk.

John L. Schultz, 53, grocer.

Isadore Tureff, 56, watch repairer.

R. Ellwood Kelly, 63, file clerk.

William B. Meade, 56, garage man.

Archie A. Moore, 47, insurance solicitor.

Less than a dozen witnesses are to be called by the government. Whether the defense will have any will depend upon developments, counsel said.

WAGE EARNER TODAY IS MUCH BETTER OFF

New York, March 7 (AP)—The wage earner today is 28 per cent better off than he was before the war.

A wage advance of 50 per cent over the increase in living costs since 1914, and the purchasing power of the dollar, stabilized at 60 cents as compared with the 1914 pre-war dollar, accounts for the gain, the National Industrial Conference Board announced today.

Purchasing power of the dollar has fluctuated little more than five per cent during the last five years.

OLD HOFFMANN BREWERY SOLD UNDER CONTRACT

The property of the Jacob Hoffmann Brewing Company on Hone street has been sold under contract by William J Hoffmann of New York through Erbsler & Carey, real estate brokers. The name of the purchaser has not been announced. Title will pass in about three weeks.

Legislature Now In Home Stretch

Date of Adjournment Uncertain, But End of Session is Drawing Near—Numerous Activities Expected in Both Houses This Week.

Albany, N. Y., March 7 (AP).—With final adjournment little more than a fortnight distant, the New York Legislature will swing into the home stretch this week.

In the Assembly, in expectation that the work of the session might be closed by March 18, the Rules Committee takes charge of all legislation after today. Ordinarily this all-powerful committee assumes control of all unreported legislation in the lower house ten days prior to adjournment. The Assembly has also adopted a resolution setting March 18 as the final day, but the Senate is expected to amend the resolution so as to fix March 25 as adjournment date. By that time it is believed the work of the session can be completed.

At present the only possible barrier to completion of the work by that time is the settlement of the contest in the Seventeenth Senatorial district, New York city, in which former Senator Cortlandt Nicoll, Republican, seeks the senate seat now occupied by Abraham Greenberg, Democrat. If the committee on privileges and elections has not reported its finding to the Senate by March 25, final adjournment will be postponed until a decision is reached.

The coming week will be featured by an attempt on the part of Maurice Bloch, Democrat floor leader of the Assembly, to obtain a record vote on the Democratic administration measures which have not been reported by committees. These include proposals for abolishing motion picture censorship and the state census. The water power legislation recommended by Governor Smith yet remains in committee, but it is doubtful if any move will be made to bring this up for a record vote pending further conferences on the general subject of water power between the governor and the legislative leaders

Wet and Dry Bills.

Assemblymen Edmund B. Jenks, Republican, of Broome, and Louis A. Cuvillier, Democrat, New York, leaders, respectively of the dry and wet forces of the lower house, will move to discharge committees from further consideration of their search and seizure bills. These measures are legislative antitheses. The Jenks bill seeks to strengthen the Mullan-Gage state enforcement law, repealed in 1923, while the Cuvillier bill is intended to make search and seizure more difficult where intoxicants are concerned. Assemblyman Jenks takes the position that the Mullan-Gage bill could not legally be repealed, and, consequently, remains in effect.

On Tuesday there will be a hearing on Assemblyman Cuvillier's bill to memorialize Congress to call a constitutional convention for the purpose of repealing the 18th amendment. While some wet measures have received favorable treatment at the hands of this legislature, the leaders are opposed to the proposed federal constitutional convention on the ground that prohibition would not be the sole topic under consideration and that the various changes proposed might, if adopted, bring about a condition of chaos so far as the basic law of the nation is concerned.

Another hearing on Tuesday will be on the bill of Senator Charles A. Freiberg, Republican, of Erie, designed to compel street railway companies to operate their cars with full crews. This is aimed against the present practice of one man performing the duties of both conductor and motorman.

Other Important Matters.

Aside from the Democratic administration measures on which Minority Leader Bloch will attempt to obtain a record vote, the principal matters of legislative business which have not yet been brought out of committee for passage include the 48-hour bill for women and minors in industry, the bill of the Friedsam commission for increased state aid for public schools, the Webb bill for a two-cent tax on each gallon of gasoline, and the bill to provide for a reapportionment of the senatorial districts of the state.

Sometime during the week Assemblyman Bert Lord, Republican, Chenango, will reintroduce his bill of last year providing for taxing of outdoor signs along improved highways. The report of the superintendent of public works this year recommended a tax of this kind. The department has estimated that the needs of the state for highways will be more than forty millions of dollars the coming year.

SEVERAL CASES BEFORE JUDGE SHUFELDT

Patrick Higginson, arrested Saturday by Officer Hopper on a charge of disorderly conduct on Wall street, entered a plea of not guilty when arraigned before Judge Shufeldt in police court today and the hearing was adjourned to Thursday.

William Sapp, arrested on a charge of assault in the third degree on complaint of Jacob Muldach of Glen street, was fined $15.

Edward Martha, arrested Saturday on a charge of public intoxication, was $5.

Finds His Mother Dead on Roof

Mrs. Nathalie Seible Schley, Widow of Buchanan Schley, Who Was Deputy Collector of the Port of Baltimore, Is Found Dead by Her Son.

New York, March 7 (AP)—Mrs. Nathalie Seible Schley, widow of Buchanan Schley, Jr., who was deputy collector of the port of Baltimore in the administration of President Cleveland, died today after a fall or a leap from a window on the fifteenth floor of the Hotel Buckingham in West 57th street.

The body, fully clothed, was found on a roof over an extension on the second floor by her son, Buchanan Schley, a cotton broker, who lived in a suite with his mother.

Mr. Schley knocked at his mother's door to greet her this morning and receiving no response, walked in. Looking out of the open window he saw her body on the roof below.

Mrs. Schley's husband, who died here on November 15, was for twenty years a member of the New York Cotton Exchange and was a first cousin of the late Rear Admiral Schley, of Spanish War fame.

Malcolm Referee In Newcombe Suit

Catskill Lawyer Appointed by Judge Hasbrouck to Hear Issues Raised in Proceeding Against Zoning Board of Appeals.

J. Lewis Malcolm of Catskill was on Saturday afternoon designated by Supreme Court Judge G. D. B. Hasbrouck to hear evidence in regard to the issues raised by petitioner in the A. R. Newcombe Oil Corporation action against the Kingston City Zoning Board of Appeals. The Newcombe Oil Company sought leave to extend its gasoline station at the junction of Broadway and Delaware avenue The board of public works denied the application on the grounds that the property was in a residential area as designated by the zoning map and that therefore the board had no right to grant the permission. An appeal was taken to the Board of Appeals and the action of the board of public works was upheld.

On February 5 the matter was argued at special term of the Supreme court before Judge Hasbrouck when an order of certiorari was returnable before the court

Judge Hasbrouck has referred the matter to Mr Malcolm to hear evidence with regard to the issues raised, and report the same with findings of fact and conclusions of law and his opinion to the court.

William D. Brinnier, Jr., appears for the petitioner; Corporation Counsel Jenkins appears for the board and John W. Eckert appears for residents of the section who oppose the expansion.

Two Persons Die In Tenement Fire

Martin Kriyer and Wife Taken to Hospital in Serious Condition—Fireman and Policeman Slightly Hurt.

Hudson, N. Y., March 7 (AP).—Two persons lost their lives in a tenement house fire here today. Two others were taken to the hospital. Slight injuries were sustained by a fireman and a policeman.

The dead are: George Weir and Mose Woodfox, the latter a negro.

Weir's death was caused by suffocation, while Woodfox was burned.

Martin Kriyer and his wife were taken to a hospital, where it was said that the woman probably would not recover.

Fred Imhof, a fireman, and Policeman Pazara were hurt in attempting to catch a woman who jumped from a second story window. Imhof was knocked off a ladder and Pazara sprained his back.

The tenement house was a wooden structure occupied by 23 tenants, mostly foreigners and negroes. The blaze is believed to have originated on the first floor, where some of the negro tenants were having a party.

CAR COMES TO GRIEF ON SAUGERTIES ROAD.

A Studebaker car licensed in the name of William Burger of this city came to grief on the Saugerties road near the Neighborhood road Sunday night or today. The car apparently traveling north over the road left the highway some five hundred feet south of the Neighborhood road and ran along for some distance and crashed into a telephone pole. The pole was broken off. How the accident happened is not known and the authorities are investigating. Word of the accident was sent to the sheriff's office and an investigation is under way to learn how it happened and if anyone was injured.

Our Growing Population.

The following births have been reported to the board of health:

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Watrous, 13 Sterling street, a daughter, Evelyn June.

Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Peppard, 23 East Pierpont street, a son, Harold.

Auto Show Ends; Most Successful Ever Held in City

Large Crowd Displays Interest in Cars and Accessories — See Strength of Cars and Tire Tested —Exhibitors Satisfied With Their Efforts.

Saturday night terminated the most successful Automobile Show ever held in the state armory by the local dealers. The large drill shed was filled with people who came from communities throughout the county to witness the record breaking Automobile Show of 1927 of which they had heard so much. And their anticipations of seeing remarkable things and being entertained were fully met, for all enjoyed the show given under the auspices of the automobile men, radio sellers and merchants who deal in washing machines, refrigerators and auto accessories.

The feature that attracted most attention on the closing night of the show was the inflating of the Norwalk inner tube by Arthur Dawe, an employe of William Todd, who sells the Norwalk tires. Young Dawe, son of the popular conductor on the local trolley road, pumped the tube so full of air that it resembled a huge watermelon and it was not until the man manipulating the pump had completed 1,540 strokes that the rubber gave way to the pressure of the air within.

Mr Todd gave everyone a chance to guess the number of strokes of an ordinary hand pump it would take to burst the tube and many guesses ranging from 50 to 70,000 composed the list.

Dawe Showed Endurance.

Everyone gathered about the musicians' stand when the tube was ready to be pumped and all interest centered about the limp tube and the pumper, Arthur Dawe. The young man started off at a fast pace and showed wonderful endurance throughout the task for he kept pumping until the tire could hold not another ounce of air pressure. He rested for a few seconds after each hundred strokes and then assumed his task again. When he reached the 1,000 mark he took off his coat and was given a glass of water which stimulated a great amount of energy for he seemed as fresh and vigorous at this period of his work as when he completed the first 100.

The tube gave way to the pressure after the 1,540 strokes had been completed but young Dawe was not pumping when the bursting occurred for it was during one of the resting periods that the loud noise informed all that the task was completed.

It was rather fortunate that the tube did burst while no one was near for it might have caused the person to undergo a "set-back" due to the amount of pressure it contained. For the reason mentioned the tube and the man doing the pumping were removed from the musicians' stand to the floor of the large drill shed.

Entertainment by Local Talent.

The entertainment was also enjoyed very much and was furnished by local talent. Tommy Doland, accompanied by Daniel Bittner on the piano, delightfully rendered several tenor selections and was forced to answer the applause with encores. Levine and DeKoskie, "The Ukulele Harmony Boys," accompanied by Milton Lehr, also rendered selections and pleased the audience very much. They, too, were encored.

The cars, booths and all articles on display were in the same bright condition as they were on the opening night of the show and everyone enjoyed walking through the armory to glance at the many beautiful exhibits, and if it was the desire of anyone to have articles demonstrated the salesmen would cheerfully explain all details.

Showing Strength of Cars.

The treasure hunt was also an outstanding feature and many received courtesies from the hands of the merchants who made the treasure hunt possible. A performer in the guise of a clown went about announcing winners of prizes. He delighted the kiddies especially by his antics performed on the tops of the sedans. He jigged, tumbled, climbed, and did everything but fly in order to please the little ones. In performing he displayed the strength of the many makes of cars by walking and jumping on the tops. He also walked on the hoods of the autos to demonstrate their sturdiness.

The show was conducted most successfully and every exhibitor agrees that the enterprise was an event which profited all to a great extent—those who visited it as well as the merchants.

RIZZO CHARGED WITH FIRST DEGREE ASSAULT.

Frank Rizzo was brought to Ulster county jail about two o'clock this morning, to be held for a hearing on a charge of disorderly conduct in the town of Ulster, having been engaged in a fight. Rizzo is a cook at a road house on the Saugerties road. He is the man who some time ago while in jail on a charge of disorderly conduct set fire to the mattress in his cell at the jail.

Rizzo was arraigned later before Justice of the Peace Jennings of the town of Ulster who held him to await the action of the grand jury on a charge of assault in the first degree.

State Offers 25 Scholarships

The New York State Department of Education offers 25 scholarships of $1,000 each to men and women with the requisite trade and technical training who desire to enter the teaching profession. Persons who have been awarded these scholarships and who complete satisfactorily the prescribed one-year resident course in industrial teacher training at the State Normal School, Buffalo, will be given a life license to teach their respective subjects in the public schools of the state. Persons now holding a teacher's license will not be eligible for such scholarship.

Salaries paid to vocational teachers in the public schools of the state of New York range in amounts from $1,800 to $3,500 a year.

Amount—The amount of each scholarship is $1,000, payable to the holder in 10 equal installments, dependent upon regular attendance and satisfactory work. No charge is made for tuition.

Attendance—Holders of scholarships must be in attendance in the industrial teacher-training department of the Buffalo State Normal School in September and continuing thereafter for a period of 10 months.

Qualifications — Applicants must have the following qualifications:

1. Trade and Industrial Experience—For men, five years or more experience as a journeyman in a trade, industrial or technical occupation; for women, also five years' experience with only one year as an apprentice.
2. Education—Satisfactory completion of the eighth grade and a full year in a high school or its equivalent in other educational work. Applicants who are architectural or mechanical draftsmen must have been graduated from high school.
3. Age—The ages of men applicants should be from 23 to 38 years and those of women from 21 to 35 years.
4. Citizenship and Residence—Applicants must be citizens of the United States and residents of the State of New York at least one year preceding date of application.
5. Health and Character—High moral character and good health are required of applicants.

Rating Candidates—A merit list will be set up for each trade, industrial or technical occupation based on the qualification of the candidates. Candidates will be rated by examining committees as to general education, practical experience, loyalty, moral character and physical fitness. They may be required to appear before the examining committee for a personal interview.

Trade and Technical Groups Eligible.

Men—Automobile repairing (all branches), architectural drafting, bricklaying, cabinet making, electrical construction (all branches), jewelry manufacturing, lithography, machine shop work, mechanical drafting, painting and decorating, plumbing, printing (presswork and composition), sheet metal work, shoe manufacturing, weaving (silk, cotton or worsted), welding (electrical and oxy-acetylene).

Women—Artificial flower making, power machine operating (all types), novelty work.

Men and Women—Clothing manufacturing, designing and cutting, hand sewing; hotel or restaurant cook or chef.

Applications — Persons interested and eligible should write at once to the Division of Vocational and Extension Education, State Department of Education, Albany, for application blanks. Applications must be filed on or before May 15, 1927.

Quilting at Zena.

Zena, March 7.—The Ladies' League is holding a day's quilting each week at the church hall. The next quilting will be held Thursday, March 10, all day, beginning at 10 o'clock. All members are urged to be present at every meeting possible as there are two quilts on frames and there will be plenty of room for all to work. Lunch served at noon. There was a goodly number present at the meeting March 3 and very pleasing work accomplished.

Don't Risk Pneumonia By Neglecting a Cold

A cough or cold may only make you feel miserable today. But when you begin to feel "achy" and feverish, with a tightness in your chest, congestion is reaching your bronchial tubes—and these tubes lead directly into your lungs!

Quickly and unfailingly Ayer's Cherry Pectoral stops a cough and drives out the cold.

Hospital-Proved Medicine — not just a "cough syrup"! This medication penetrates through and through the irritated membranes—and is then absorbed into the blood itself. That is how its healing powers are carried to every part of your system.

If you are catching cold; if you have a "head cold"; if your chest is tight; if you have a cough—even if bronchitis has developed—Ayer's Cherry Pectoral at once! It has relieved more coughs and colds than any other medicine in the world.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is used by hospital clinics and leading physicians. Pleasant, safe and effective for children and grown people. At all druggists, 60c; twice as much, $1.00. c51b

Property Owners Paying the Costs Of Automobilists

Real Estate Now Pays 80 Per Cent of All the Taxes While Automobiles Are Virtually Tax Free—Many Misleading Statements About Proposed Gasoline Tax.

"There must be either a curtailment in the amount of money appropriated for the building and maintenance of new highways and bridges or some additional means found to raise further revenue for this purpose." According to a statement issued this week by Joseph F. Engel of Rochester, president of the New York State Association of Real Estate Boards. "If the automobilists of the state are not willing to contribute their just share toward the ever increasing cost of building and maintaining highways, then the only thing for property owners to do is to fight all appropriation bills of this kind that appear in our State Legislature."

"A great many and incorrect and misleading statements have been published in the public press recently in regard to the proposed tax on gasoline.

"A gasoline tax is now imposed in forty-four states. New York is only one of four states that does not have such a tax at the present time and this means that we have in our state gasoline bootleggers. We find automobilists of adjoining states coming into New York to buy gasoline, using our highways in an ever increasing number while the automobilists of this state going into these adjoining states and using their highways must contribute to their cost and maintenance through a gasoline tax.

"In the five years previous to 1926 there was appropriated by the state of New York for highways $138,794,145.22 and this does not include the moneys expended by county or local government. During the same period the state received from license fees on automobiles the sum of $92,953,652.39.

"The Superintendent of Public Works reports that there are now 2,460 miles of worn out roads which should be rebuilt during the next five years and the estimated cost of this reconstruction is $112,000,000.

514 Bridges Need Rebuilding.

"On January 1st, 1926, the state took over from the towns the responsibility of rebuilding all bridges on the state highway system that were condemned after that date. Reports now show that there are 514 bridges requiring rebuilding without delay and this will cost approximately twelve millions of dollars of which this state must pay 65 per cent or $7,800,000.

"In addition to all of this there are something like 3,700 miles of new highways that should be built in carrying out the present program and it has been estimated that the state's share of the cost of these new roads will be an additional $160,000,000. This makes a total expense in sight for highway purposes of about $280,000,000 aside from the regular appropriations.

"The appropriation bills for the maintenance of the state government presented at the current session of the legislature are the largest in history and it is estimated that these bills amount to $210,000,000. The estimated revenue with the surplus in the state treasury amount only to $204,000,000. Leaving a deficit of not less than six millions of dollars this year. Next year every indication points to a budget of more than two hundred and twenty millions of dollars, and if this extensive program is to be continued it is absolutely essential that the state secures additional sources of revenue.

Unjust to Home Owner.

"There is not a fair-minded, honest, American citizen who believes that with real estate now paying 80 per cent of all the taxes additional burdens should be placed on real property. We all agree that the home owner is the best citizen to any community of any state, and of the nation, and to increase the tax burden is most unreasonable, unfair, unjust and un-American.

"Not taking the average, but taking the very lowest amount of taxes that a man or woman owning a $5,000 house would pay, we find it to be $150 a year. In addition to these the home owner is liable for various assessments. In comparison to this total estimated average revenue for each registered motor vehicle in this state from all license fees is only $17.05.

"As a matter of fact getting down to a finer comparison: if a man or woman invests $1,000 cash in a $5,000 house, thus providing a proper environment and the best place for the training of the coming generation, they must pay a minimum of taxes of $150. On the other hand, a man or woman investing $1,000 in an automobile pays in license fees about $15 per year, and the automobilists are exempt from all other taxation on that personal property.

Virtually Tax Free

"As a matter of fact, several states tax automobiles as personal property, and we firmly believe that the time is not far distant when some consideration must be given in this state to such a tax. In 1926, there were licensed in the State of New York 1,444,927 automobiles aside from all commercial vehicles. Let us be very conservative and estimate the average investment in these cars at $500 each. Here we will find a total tangible wealth of more than three quarters of a billion dollars, which today is absolutely tax free except for the very small license fee charged by the State. We can see no reason whatever, why this vast amount of tangible wealth should be exempt from taxation and all of the burden, or a greater part of it placed on real estate. As a matter of fact, motorists in this state are paying toward the building and maintenance of our roads a far less amount than the great majority of motorists in our adjoining states.

"The present Legislature is considering what is known as the School Relief Bill, and while it is estimated that the provisions of this bill will cost the taxpayers the first year something like $18,500,000, several experts agree that the money to be expended will go above this amount. Then there are additional appropriations each year following. I cannot imagine that the automobilists of our state disagree with the Friedsam Commission who investigated this whole matter and urged that no further tax be put on real property to raise the necessary money to carry out this program. But the gasoline tax at this time offers the only alternative to raise money toward highway expense thus releasing a similar amount from the general fund for school purposes. And then there will be a deficiency.

Gasoline Tax Only a Start.

"As a matter of fact, the proposed gasoline tax is only a start in finding additional sources of revenue for the state government. The present bonded indebtedness of the state together with the bond issues recently approved by the people amount to five hundred and fifty-six millions of dollars, which at an average of 4 per cent interest annually means a carrying charge of $22,240,000 each year. In addition, of course, there must be a balance set aside each year for a sinking fund which will have to be included in the annual budget.

"About 22 per cent of all the real property in the state is now exempt from taxation for one reason or another, and this Association is firmly of the opinion that there should be a very searching investigation of all of this tax exempt property. Without question it will be found that a great portion of this property should be fairly taxed in accordance with the law.

"We cannot understand why the automobilists or any other group are opposed to a more suitable distribution of the tax burden, and firmly believe that if they fairly understood the proposition and if the Chambers of Commerce and other organizations, understood that we were simply trying to have a real equitable distribution of all taxes, that they would all join with us in our campaign with this end in view."

Disturbance Off Alaska Recorded

New York, March 7 (AP)—A severe disturbance apparently off the coast of Alaska was recorded on the seismograph at Fordham University today.

The shock began at 4 45 a. m., reached their maximum at 5 15 and continued until 7.40. The distance was recorded as 3 797 miles from New York in a northwesterly direction.

Officials at the observatory expressed the opinion that the disturbance recorded there was the same one as reported from Chicago, but believed that the distance had been faultily indicated at Chicago. The seismograph at the University of Chicago showed the earth shocks to be 6,300 miles from Chicago.

TELLS PARISHIONERS NOT TO LISTEN TO AGITATORS.

Hats, Coats, Suits, Shown for Spring

New Paris Silhouette Will Feature Loose Bodice, Slender Skirt.

The liveliest topic of the mode just now is, of course, the speculation as to what the new season shall bring forth. There are the usual rumors of radical changes—there are the expected reports that the new fashions shall scarcely vary an iota from what has gone before. Perhaps this year's curiosity has been made a little keener than usual by Paul Poiret's unexpected espousal of the pantalette mode. But M. Poiret's bizarre prophecy is only one among many. It is not difficult, says a Paris fashion writer in the New York Herald Tribune, to forecast the next move of fashion and, indeed, a critical observation of what is being worn at such places as Nice, Cannes, Monte Carlo and Paris, will lead you to an accurate estimate of what the openings shall bring forth.

There is first the matter of hats, which are always of primary interest during the spring season. There was once a feeling that every spring opening was bound to bring radical changes in the shape and trimming of the feminine chapeau, but that sentiment now belongs to history. There are, of course, certain distinctive markings to the hats of each new season, but there has not been a radical change in the millinery mode since the first years after the war. For this season one of the new developments is the combining of fabric and straw, which the smart Paris modistes are now offering. In these combinations the trimming may be of the straw and the body of fabric, or that order may be reversed.

Coats, too, will evidence some distinct departures from the styles of last spring, yet not a few themes popular last year will again be continued. There are rumors current to the effect that the flare is once again to be an integral part of the smart spring coat but you may dismiss these as part of the usual wild speculation that always occurs at this season of the year. The silhouette of your new spring coat must be unreservedly slim—there may be a suspicion of blousing about the waistline—there can be such chic details as the bolero and flat tiers, but the tendency of the coming season will be to emphasize the smartness of the straight, simple coat with tight sleeves.

Right here it may be said that the ensemble is emphatically due for another season, and it will find its smartest version in the short-jacketed type. A revival which is being authoritatively predicted is the renaissance of the two-piece suit, and here again the short jacket will dominate. Some of the smartest of these suits will be sports models made of effectively spotted calfskin.

Summarizing the individual units of your spring wardrobe, this will be the situation: You will wear a hat whose brim is moderate or small, whose crown is fairly high and head conforming, and which combines fabric and straw. Your coat will be slim and simple, its color will be conservative. It will gain both elaboration and vividness by means of its trimming, which will lean principally to embroidery. You may include a suit in your wardrobe. It should be a two piece affair with a short jacket. And the ensemble, one of whose members is the hardy jumper, deserves a place in every chic itinerary.

Black Satin, Black Net Worn by "Movie" Player

Felt and Straw Make Stunning Spring Hat

The combination of felt and straw, the popular materials being used in the new spring headgear, affords a most interesting hat for milady.

Plain Effects in Silk Anticipated for Spring

Changeable crepe is a contribution of Chanel to the spring afternoon frocks. Plain effects carried out in silk are anticipated, and ensembles in every color and fabric that will appear, notes a Paris fashion writer in the New York Herald-Tribune. Long coats in crepe georgette will cover frocks of matching or blending color, sometimes in similar, often in contrasting materials. Some of the ensembles will have capes instead of coats, and these will be carried out in colors slightly darker than the accompanying frocks. The vogue of jackets and skirts, which has proved such a success at the warm winter resorts, will be echoed in the spring. Jenny shows long, straight blouses in light jersey woven with a gold thread worn with skirts of matching plaited crepe de chine. She uses short jackets over fancy blouses and occasionally adds a skirt of silver lame.

Trimmings are an important [illegible] to be [illegible] forecast for spring clothes. Besides the popular bolero, yokes launched successfully during the winter months in a variety of styles, will continue in evidence. Black afternoon models will be trimmed with yokes in white or flesh colored georgette or chiffon, while many lace yokes will be apparent. The wing yoke, which is divided so that one half is attached to each shoulder, will be worn and an occasional one will continue into a long panel, floating below the hem.

In Patou's pre season showing there is a dominance of two colors or shades brought together, such as two tones of gray—he uses much gray in both coats of the sports type and one and two piece frocks. Bright red and natural wool are united in some models and two blues and two greens and sometimes two pinks or all scarlet and a few mauve notes. Flocked and single stripes are shown in the jumpers, wherein the stripes rise to varying heights—sometimes up to shoulder yoke depth and again as low as the normal waist, which means that all possible positions between the two are included.

Fullness Outstanding Feature of the Sleeve

The diversity in sleeve treatments is strikingly apparent in gowns. Fullness is the outstanding feature.

Sometimes the sleeve is a cap with a full puff of contrasting materials attached and caught in at the wrist or it is allowed to fall in wide flowing lines. But sleeves are prominent. These are of contrasting fabrics and color or in embroidered effects and are attached to the sleeves of the dress material at or on the elbow.

The barrel sleeve is much in evidence and stitched down, plaited sleeves with the plaits released below the wrist and allowed to fall bell shaped are a new note.

Of course there are long tight sleeves, and a prominent French couturier sponsors a tight fitting tailored sleeve finished with 24 gold buttons.

Uncomplimentary Fact

"It certainly isn't very flattering when you come to think about it," argued Smith. "Well, I'm no mind reader, but I'm willing to think about it. Spill it," said Brown. "Oh, I was just thinking how small it makes a husband feel to see how deadly afraid of a mouse his wife is and how deadly unafraid of him she is," replied Smith.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

PEPPY POLITICS.

Not since the days of the Honorable Hinky Dink and the Honorable Bath House John who ruled Chicago in the nineties through their control of the slum vote, has that enterprising center of civilization witnessed a campaign to compare in colorful setting and spectacular linguistics with that now in progress.

William Hale Thompson, who won national notoriety during the war by declining to stage Liberty Loan parades in what he declared to be the largest German city outside of Germany, is undertaking to get hold of the helm of the city government. He has been deserted by certain former lieutenants and is bitter in consequence. So bitter, indeed, is he that he has announced that one of these lost lieutenants, a doctor, is the sort of man who gets egg in his beard, spills soup on his clothing and never takes a bath.

Of course these matters have a decided bearing upon the question of improving the city, disarming the gunmen, discouraging the hold-ups and other operations of the lake-shore banditti, and therefore will play their little part in the mayoralty campaign.

The oldtime leaders did not engage in that sort of stump argument. The Honorable Hinky Dink provided soup for his constituents to spill on their vests if they wished, while in the days of the Honorable Bath House John the former lieutenant of mayoralty-aspirant Thompson, would have found a municipal bath house ready at hand to enable him to refute the charges of his ex-ally that he is anti-social as to the ancient Saturday night rite.

It is greatly to be feared that if Chicago ward politics continue to sink toward former levels while the lawlessness of the underworld there grows apace, somebody will revive the story of the Philadelphian, who chided in Chicago about the sleepiness of his home town retorted that whereas Philadelphia might beat Chicago in somnolence, the Windy City beat all creation in another important matter. He explained that when a man comes to die anywhere else he is concerned about his destination, but in Chicago, any change is considered desirable.

TRAFFIC CONDITIONS.

Does it pay police in cities and towns to be unusually strict in enforcing traffic laws, especially against strangers, or does it pay to be more liberal? Many communities throughout the country have proved quite satisfactorily that liberal application of traffic laws with reference to strangers is the most profitable in the long run. The day of "pinching" the public for every slight infraction is past. The consensus of opinion expressed by police officials at the recent National Motorcycle Show held at New York was to the effect that it is no longer considered good form to maintain police forces merely to see how many arrests can be made. On the contrary, the majority of police and municipal heads judge the efficiency of police effort by the lack of arrests.

In other words modern police practice is following the plan of preventive action rather than punitive action. One police official in his orders recently stressed this point to his subordinates by pointing out that an officer showing an unusual number of arrests would be considered not fulfilling the policies of the department. He pointed out that a reduction of accidents within an officer's sphere of activity means more to the community than a large number of arrests for minor infractions.

Municipal authorities who have given a great deal of thought and study to the problem claim that the presence of a properly uniformed and properly mounted officer on the road acts as a satisfactory deterrent to deliberate law infractions and enables an officer to thoroughly patrol a given territory, lending aid to snarled traffic and by bringing vehicles on the move, reduce the possibility of collisions. While all of this is very true, a police department, a policeman or a court must not become spineless and must realize that unless wilful infractions of the law and gross carelessness are promptly punished we might as well be without police or courts. Courtesy and moral suasion have their limitations.

The "whip of scorpions" imagined by an early poet comes to mind when we read that one distinguished member of the United States Senate told another "that he was a coward, a liar, a fool; that he was puerile, callow, contemptible, unmanly, consciously untruthful, lost to a sense of decency, familiar with the smell of garbage." We may well conclude that the "august" upper chamber of Congress could hardly believe its ears.

THE COUNTRY DOCTOR.

I sometimes wonder if in these days of the specialist we are not overlooking the sterling worth of the general practitioner with the great weight of responsibility that rests upon him daily.

Our specialist may of course get the case in an advanced state, and whether said case is medical or surgical he can only do his best, and his responsibility is therefore not really as great as that of the general practitioner.

The Kansas Medical Journal speaking of the general practitioner, really the Country Doctor, says: If you can set a fractured thigh bone with a piece of string and a flat iron, and get as good mechanical results as the emergency staff of a city hospital.

If you can drive ten miles to case the little child of a dead beat.

If you can bring a new babe into the world from a difficult position, with no help but that of grandma and the husband.

If you can diagnose tonsillitis from diphtheria with a laboratory forty-eight miles away.

If you can pull the three-pronged fishhook molar tooth of the 250 pound hired man.

If you can change tires at four below at 4 a. m.

Then, my boy, you are a Country Doctor.

It is hardly to be wondered at therefore that the family doctor of former times became such a standby in the community.

You and I know that in many cases he straightened out difficulties in homes where priest or minister, could not, for various reasons, have done so.

And so as mentioned once before we must naturally go to the specialist for advanced conditions, for puzzling conditions, but the specialists whose percentage of all round successful cases are the largest, are not always those who have gone immediately from medical college to study or specialize in hospital or hospitals, but those who have done the routine work of general practice for five, ten, or more years. The self reliance and judgment developed by having to do the emergency things mentioned above, besides many others, makes of the general practitioner a real practical specialist, not a theorist.

Tame Monkeys Outcasts

After monkeys have lived with human beings for a time they are looked upon as outcasts by their wild relatives. And should one of them escape and return to the forest, as they sometimes do, and try to rejoin its tribe, it is attacked by the others and driven away or put to death.

On several occasions I have seen wild monkeys chasing pets, and once I witnessed an execution. It was a terrible thing, for the monkeys are savage fighters and utterly relentless when excited and angry. I have known them to wait patiently day after day near a village for an opportunity to kill a captive relative.

Hatred, jealousy and suspicion are as highly developed in the monkey family as in the human race.—Delia J. Akeley in the Saturday Evening Post.

ULSTER COUNTY HISTORY CLUB

In preparation for the observance this year of the 150th anniversary of the defeat of the Burgoyne campaign, as a major part of the celebration of New York's sesquicentennial, Dr. Alexander C. Flick, state historian, has made the following statement on the origin of the Burgoyne campaign:

Origin of the Burgoyne Campaign 1777.

By the spring of 1777 the Revolutionary War had been in progress two years. The military advantage, on the whole, was with the British. Driven out of Boston, they were in complete control of New York city—a more strategic position.

Checked in an advance up the Hudson by Washington's stubborn resistance north of the Harlem, Howe invaded the Jerseys and threatened Philadelphia. Congress fled to Baltimore. The American invasion of Canada had failed. Europe spoke of the American cause as lost.

This apparent British military advantage, however, had been offset by the activities of the patriots. They had gained a great moral victory by issuing the Declaration of Independence. New state governments were formed. The Loyalists were held in check. The invasion of the Jerseys was turned back.

In this situation, the British government elaborated its plan of action for 1777. The Burgoyne campaign was matured in London. Contrary to common belief, it was not a new project but merely the continuation of the campaign of 1776 which had for its objective the control of the strategic Hudson river-Lake Champlain route in New York by an invasion of General Carleton southward from Canada and an expedition of General Howe northward from New York city with a triumphant juncture at Albany. Neither branch of the project materialized. Hence for the year 1777 the plan for 1776 was elaborated and provision was made for a military force which it was believed would insure its success.

In London, during the spring of 1777, General John Burgoyne and Lord George Germaine, who was in charge of the war as secretary for the Colonies, in conference with George III sketched out a new campaign which seemed to them likely to terminate the American rebellion. This unified movement had three distinct parts:

1. Colonel St. Leger was to take a force of regulars to Oswego, and then having been joined by Indians and Tories, capture Fort Stanwix and march triumphantly down the Mohawk valley to Albany.

2. Sir William Howe, with an army and navy, was to ascend the Hudson river, crushing resistance as he proceeded, and help to seize Albany.

3. General Burgoyne, with the largest army, was to proceed down Lake Champlain, capturing the forts at Crown Point and Ticonderoga en route, and form a juncture with the other two armies at Albany.

On paper the plan looked relatively simple and feasible. The military and naval forces seemed adequate. General Burgoyne's part was regarded as the most important. Even if Colonel St. Leger failed, the two major drives seemed likely to succeed. In actual accomplishment, however, the Burgoyne campaign presented serious obstacles. The difficulties of a campaign in the wilderness, where distances were great, were numerous and attendant with delays and sickness. The problems of food and transportation were serious. The asistance of the Loyalists and the resistance of the patriots were miscalculated. The ease with which New England, directly threatened, could go to the relief of New York was underestimated. Even the approximately perfect timing of three movements on so large a scale was well-nigh impossible. And the most fatal error of all was the attempt to direct the campaign from London. How serious was this blunder is illustrated by the tale that Lord Germaine forgot to sign and transmit to Sir William Howe mandatory orders to cooperate directly with Burgoyne in opening the Hudson to Albany. Feeling that he had discretionary power, he delayed too long to enable Sir Henry Clinton, who was in charge of the expedition, to start in time to save Burgoyne from defeat.

WITTENBERG.

Wittenberg, March 7.—Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Short and Mrs. Aaron Vande Bogart made a business trip to Kingston on Monday last.

The gypsy moth control men have again resumed their work in Wittenberg and a number of the boys are stopping at Watson Riseley's.

The Willing Workers' Society met at the home of their president, Mrs. S. L. Short, on Wednesday afternoon, March 2. After the business was transacted a social hour was spent and a delicious luncheon served by Mrs. Short which everyone enjoyed.

Garlic Stew Beat Napoleon

A COOK who spoiled the broth contributed to the wrecking of Napoleon's brilliant prospects after his victory in the battle of Dresden in the campaign of 1813-1814.

At grips with nearly all of Europe and closely pressed by the armies of Russia, Prussia and Austria, Napoleon turned defeat into victory at Dresden by a swift movement that brought him and his guard overland from Silesia to succor St. Cyr and twenty thousand troops, beleaguered in Dresden. The magic of the great warrior's presence infused new enthusiasm in the worn-out troops. "There he is! There he is!" was shouted on all sides as the emperor crept through a murderous Austrian fire to enter the city.

The following day Napoleon laid a concentrated artillery fire on the allied center, and sent Ney against the right and Murat against the left. The allies broke and retreated leaving twenty thousand prisoners. Throughout this day Napoleon rode about his lines, his clothing soaked and that night he suffered a slight chill. His spirits had risen, however, and he believed that the tide at last had turned in his favor. General Vandamme, in the enemy's rear, was expected to complete the annihilation of the retreating Russians and Prussians. He failed, partly through his own weak tactics and partly through Napoleon's failure to pursue his advantage. The latter was laid low by an attack of illness, which some attributed to exposure and exhaustion, but which the emperor, himself, said was "nothing but an attack of indigestion caused by a wretched stew seasoned with garlic, which I cannot endure."

The Napoleonic army was cut to pieces in its subsequent retreat and from that time, August, 1815, misfortune dogged the steps of the emperor of the French.

Words often misused: Don't say "it is a very unique article." "Very" is redundant. "Unique" means without another of the same kind.

Often mispronounced: Laundress. The au as a in "father" is preferred to a as in "call."

Often misspelled: Sophomore.

Synonyms: Innocent, blameless, guiltless, sinless, harmless, inoffensive, faultless, undefiled.

Word Study: "Use a word three times and it is yours." Let us increase our vocabulary by mastering one word each day. Today's word: Impotent: wanting in physical, intellectual, or moral power; weak. "He realized that it was an impotent jealously he must subdue."

ACCORD.

Accord, March 7.—The community of Accord is now signing up for the toxin-antitoxin protection against diphtheria. Parents of children between the ages of six months and ten years are requested to fill in and return the application cards, which will be distributed by the school teachers and Home Bureau members, as soon as possible. The free clinics under the direction of the State Board of Health will be held at Kerhonkson in April and will be conducted by Dr. Hauker. The date and place of the first of the three clinics will be announced later.

3 Incorporations In Ulster County

Albany, March 7.—The first two months this year fall short in the number of stock companies incorporating in this state, as compared with the totals last year. A report just issued by Robert Moses, secretary of state, in whose department the corporation bureau is located, shows a total of 4,529 companies for the first two months this year, as against 4,779 for the same two months in 1926.

Outside of New York city, which claimed 1,789 out of the month's total of 2,977, there were 238 companies, these in the main being located in Westchester county, which had 81 companies, Nassau with 45, and Erie with 44.

In Ulster county, three companies having an aggregate capitalization of $30,000, incorporated last month.

NOTED ORGANIST WILL INAUGURATE ECHO ORGAN

Besides the splendidly generous gift of the echo organ, in addition to the regular organ in the First Reformed Dutch Church, which is being made by Mrs. Hewitt Boice, Mrs. Boice is arranging for a splendid organ recital to inaugurate the completed organ.

At present there is a force of men working under the careful supervision of Architect Gerard W. Betz, installing the blow pipe, electric wiring, tone opening, etc., preparatory to the arrival and putting in place of the new echo organ which is being built at West Haven, Conn., by the Hall Organ Company. This organ will be equipped with tubular chimes and harp and will be fully installed by the first of April.

As soon as the installation is completed, it has been Mrs. Boice's good fortune to secure Clarence Dickinson, the noted organist of the Brick Presbyterian Church of Fifth avenue, New York city, to give a recital which will be entirely an invitation affair.

Not satisfied with the rare gift of the organ itself, Mrs. Boice is adding this further generosity of bringing to Kingston this famous organist.

Snyder Boarding House Sold.

The boarding house and farm of Edward F. Snyder, situated on the Plattekill and Orange Lake road, was sold last week to Mrs. Marcela Giliginski of New York city. Mrs. Giliginski formerly owned a 400 acre farm near Wallkill. After spending some time in New York, Mrs. Giliginski decided to return to that section. The Snyder property is well known as a boarding house. Mr. Snyder went to Orange county from Olean and purchased the farm through L. Burnett in 1921. W. L. Burnett sold the property to Mrs. Giliginski.

LAST NIGHT on the RADIO

WDBZ was again weak, noisy and almost overcome by a hum Sunday morning. This, at a time when interference should be at the lowest, is characteristic of broadcasting the morning church service, a condition that has prevailed for several weeks and is getting worse.

Best Sunday afternoon features were the WJZ program at 2 and the Manlius School Band at WGY, beginning at 3.

The early evening Crossley program could be heard from WLW but much better from WGY. The Capital Theatre and Atwater Kent programs were also heard best from WGY.

At 7:30 Saturday night the father of all buzzers began to buzz and continued for 15 minutes. At 8:30 all the bloopers gathered around WGY and gave a concert.

Radio owners of Walterboro, S. C., says the New York Tribune, recently had so much trouble with their sets that the sale of radios deceased considerably. A radio dealer put experts on the job, who spent a whole day going over the city trying to locate the trouble, but it was not until evening, when the electric lighting lines were used, that they found it. It was all centered in a leaky transformer. As soon as it was repaired the buzz-sawing that had annoyed the radio fans disappeared.

The same condition prevails here and the same remedy should be applied if interest in radio and sale of sets is to continue. Most of the disturbances are preventable.

WHEN I WAS TWENTY-ONE

BY JOSEPH KAYE

At Twenty-One—Robert Underwood Johnson Was the Associate of Famous Editors.

"AT THE age of twenty—I set foot in New York for the first time and went to the offices of Scribner's Monthly, little knowing that I was about to establish a relationship which would last for more than forty years.

"My family was already known to Roswell Smith, the publisher of the magazine, for his wife, as Miss Annie Ellsworth, had been a friend of my mother's in Washington, and as young women both had been present on the 24th of May, 1844, when Morse transmitted the first telegraphic message ever sent, passing from Washington to Baltimore.

"Mr. Smith greeted me cordially, but soon began to make a test of my mettle by trying to discourage me, but I saw that he was not serious about it and he took me back to present me to the editor, Dr. J. G. Holland. Doctor Holland received me genially and introduced me to his associate, Richard Watson Gilder, who was most cordial, and after a little conversation it was agreed that I should have a trial of three months as clerk and editorial assistant.

"My novitiate on the magazine did not occupy the designated three months, for after three weeks, Doctor Holland came to me one day as I sat at my desk and putting his hand in a fatherly manner on my shoulder, said very gently, 'Johnson, if you like us as well as we like you, you may hang up your hat and call it a bargain.' From that time on, for forty years, I was part of the corps and (what was equally delightful) of the spirit de corps of the magazine.—Robert Underwood Johnson."

TODAY—Mr. Johnson has distinguished himself greatly both in literature and statesmanship. He succeeded the famous Gilder as editor of the magazine which became in time The Century Magazine. Later he became ambassador to Italy and a noted leader of political thought.

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

THE MINSTREL

OUR conception of a minstrel today is a blackface comedian, and, accordingly, the far-famed Dan Emmett, said to have been the first man to use burnt cork on his face, has been called the inventor of minstrelsy.

But minstrels existed long before the days of Dan Emmet. Their origin is written in their name, for "minstrel" comes from the old French "menestrel," which goes back to the Latin "ministralis," meaning servant. And the first minstrels were of the class of musical entertainers attached to medieval households, particularly those who sang to the accompaniment of the harp or other instrument.

Later the name came to be applied to street singers and traveling troubadours of whom frequent mention can be found in contemporary literature. For instance, in a Flemish book entitled "Adventures of the Fox Rheinhardt," written in the Twelfth century by one Willem, we read of "minnestreels" or troubadours.

Anatole France refers to Homer as a minstrel who traveled to the military camps to entertain the soldiery with his epic songs. But the first valid minstrels and the first to answer to that name were the medieval troubadours of whom the burnt-cork gentry are a comparatively modern variation.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

By F. A. WALKER

YOUR ASPIRATIONS

THE real turning-point in your career does not manifest itself until you have definitely decided whether you shall drift about like a fallen leaf in the forest, or hold steadfastly to a predetermined course.

Up to that time your aspirations have been vague. You have not been on intimate speaking terms with them. It is doubtful whether you could describe their dress, whether they are pirates bent on scuttling your ship or whether they are friends proffering their hands to lead you beside still waters.

You have promptings in common with all mankind, ready to believe that you are endowed with various excellences, superior in most respects to those to be found in any of your associates.

You have no delinquencies, no shortcomings such as you glimpse from time to time in these associates when they are off guard, yet they are getting ahead in spite of failing while you are going round and round in circles.

Perhaps you explain this by saying you are waiting for the big opportunity, and when that comes you will distinguish yourself.

The commonplace, humdrum things do not inspire you. They fail to draw out those latent abilities and wonderful impulses which you know are yours—yours alone.

When the time comes you will make a spring, leap to the goal, cover yourself with renown and go down to posterity covered with honors.

Great resolutions of this character unless supported by sincere, earnest effort, never amount to anything.

Unfailing and familiar companionship with work is the only key that will unlock the door of conquest. You cannot pick the lock with self-adulation. The road to failure is worn bare by millions who have tried it.

Your success must come from your own endeavors, long hours of close application, confidence in the laws established by our Creator, cheerfulness in doing with all your might the irksome things, and faith in yourself.

There is no other way.

HEBREW INSTITUTE PLANS IMPROVEMENTS

The Hebrew Institute reopened today after having been closed for two months due to Rabbi Clark's illness. The religious school will be open every afternoon from 4 to 6.

Tuesday evening a special members' meeting will be held to hear the reports of the building committee. Full plans will be submitted for the remodeling of the building recently purchased at Fair and Franklin streets. The building when finished will contain a large auditorium, class rooms, billiard room, reading room, kitchen, stage and dressing room.

On Wednesday evening a masquerade and civic ball will be held at the Knights of Columbus hall under the auspices of the Ladies Auxiliary [illegible] towards the [illegible] the building.

MOLYNEAUX PLACES NEW LA SALLE ON EXHIBITION.

A. J. Molyneaux of the Ulster Garage [illegible] Saturday [illegible] evening [illegible] placed on [illegible] La Salle is a product [illegible] of the General Motors company and is designed along the lines of the Cadillac [illegible] smaller model. The [illegible] of the Cadillac are retained.

The new La Salle is being shown in the show room of the Ulster Garage which has been taken over by Mr. Molyneaux again for show room purposes. For the past several months this show room has been occupied by the Cadillac restaurant. It will be entirely renovated and again used as a display room.

This One Is Noisy

Douglas pine squirrel is darker and browner than its relatives, for it inhabits the moist, coniferous forests west of the Cascades in the Pacific Northwest, says Nature Magazine. It is a noisy little animal, scolding or singing as the mood of the moment dictates. Any edible thing will do for a red squirrel's meal. Average length is 13 inches.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

COPYRIGHT BY WESTERN NEWSPAPER UNION

THE PIGS' RIDE

Strangely enough Daddy had not told the children a story about an airship in a long, long time, and certainly, he said to himself, another story must not be told about anything before he told an airplane story.

Nick loved to get hold of all the pictures he could to see just how the airplanes did look and how they really did fly.

So when Daddy told them he had an airplane story for them both Nick and Nancy were delighted.

"I am going to tell you this evening," said Daddy, "a story about three little pigs and their ride in an airship

"There was a young man who owned an airship. But besides this he also had a small farm, and three little young pigs had just been added to it.

"The young man thought the little pigs were so cunning that he hardly wanted to leave them, even for his airship, of which, of course, he was very fond.

"So the only thing left for him to do, he decided, was to take the little pigs for a trip in the airship.

"When he asked the little pigs if they would like to fly with him they did look very much surprised.

"As they didn't know what to say they gave their usual answer of a squeal, but it sounded like a strong and enthusiastic squeal.

He Hardly Wanted to Leave Them.

"So he picked them up and put them into the waiting airship.

"So off into the air, up near the clouds, and over the clouds they went.

"The little pigs were not at all frightened, and they seemed to like the clouds.

"The young man decided that they must like extreme things, for they liked to get under the earth, and they seemed to very much enjoy getting way up in the air.

"Of course they squealed, but they squealed for joy, and they were just as good as could be.

"When they got to earth again after a good, long trip they really seemed to be very much disappointed that such a fine trip had come to an end.

"Then when they got to the barnyard once more you should have heard the noise.

"Of course the pigs had to tell all the other animals about their trip, and the more they talked the louder were their voices.

"Of course they wanted to brag to the other animals of how much more of the world they had seen than any of them, for, though, you might not believe it to be so, pigs have their pride, too."

"Well," said Nick, "I would be pretty proud myself if I had ever been up in an airship."

"So would I," said Nancy.

"Well," laughed Daddy, "the pigs then had a right to be proud of themselves for having been up in the clouds."

"I should say so," said Nick.

"So should I," agreed Nancy.

Tat's What Hurt

An old gentleman walking along a country road saw a boy leaning on the wall of an orchard. "My lad," said the old gentleman, "why are you looking so longingly at those apples? Don't you know it is wicked to take what does not belong to you?"

"Yes, darn it!" was the quick reply. "I wish I didn't."

No Doubt

The Mother—Why did you beat my child yesterday?

Teacher—I had to beat him because he wouldn't tell me the name of the capital of England. He only stood and looked at me.

Mother—The poor thing, he was dumbfounded at yer ignorance, most likely.

Sounds Like It

"Why don't you go to our church?" asked one little boy to another.

"Because," replied the other, "we belong to a different abomination."—Central Europe.In Observer.

Irish Insight

"Hope is a great blessin'," ruminated Cassidy, "an' yet if it wasn't for hope none av us would iver be disappointed."—American Boy Magazine.

Considerate

"So you are using balloon tires now."

"Yes; they are easier on the pedestrians."—American Boy Magazine.

EVER SINCE HEM STEPPED OUT TO THE GARAGE TO LOCK UP HIRAM FARINA'S CAR PENDING THE SETTLEMENT OF HIS $300 COMMISSION, AND DISCOVERED IT WAS GONE HE AND AMY HAVE BEEN AT ODDS UPON THE SUBJECT OF WHO TOOK IT.
IT'S AS PLAIN AS THE NOSE ON YOUR FACE WHO GRABBED THE CAR. IT WAS THOSE THREE PROSPECTS WHO OFFERED YOU $700 FOR IT. THEY WERE DETERMINED TO GET IT ONE WAY OR ANOTHER.
WHY SHOULD THEY STEAL IT? THEY WERE WILLING TO PAY GOOD DOUGH FOR IT. NOPE. I'VE GOT A HUNCH THAT OLD FARINA FOUND OUT HE COULDN'T GRAB THE SALE ANY OTHER WAY, SO HE HELPED HIMSELF TO IT.
I TELL YOU HIRAM HAD NOTHING TO DO WITH IT. IT WAS THAT CHIEF AND HIS GANG.
NO SIR! IT WAS HIRAM FARINA THAT SWIPED IT. I'M POSITIVE.
WELL!! WHAT ARE YOU GOING TO DO ABOUT IT? WE'RE ENTITLED TO OUR $300 COMMISSION, REGARDLESS OF WHO HAS IT.

DAILY RADIO PROGRAM

Tuesday March 8.

WJZ, WBZ and KDKA will open the feature broadcasting period Tuesday with Irving Kaufman, comedian, and Milton Cross, tenor, supported by Walter Haenschen's Orchestra. Kaufman will inform the radio audience in a new song that he doesn't believe in the "Tales of Hoffman." Nine o'clock will offer three highlights when arias from ten operas will be broadcast by WJZ and KDKA; when the Boston Bruins and Pittsburgh take to the ice through WBZ and when Irvin S. Cobb acts as master of ceremonies in a program through WEAF and Red Network. Cobb will adapt some of his famous Southern stories into this feature which also will include music by the Revellers and an orchestra. The rodeo from the southwestern Exposition and Fat Stock Show at Fort Worth will be broadcast by WBAP at 10.30.

our-H Clubs Will Reforest

lbany, March 7.—Boys and s in 4-H. clubs in fifteen coun- of the state will plant this ing in forest plantations 495,- trees as their first year's work three year forestry project.

he 4-H. clubs are a junior ach of the Farm Bureau organi- ion which takes up practically of the projects taken up by the r body. The four Hs in the of the junior organization stand head, hands, heart and health. ince half of the entire land in New York state is better pted to growing trees than any r use, forestry is a vital part of iculture in the state. Work in estry should appeal to boys and s because of its outdoor nature the possibility of combining wth activities in nature dies, camping and wood craft. use of the number of years re- ired to grow a crop of wood, the s and girls as future landowners l reap the direct benefits of the nciples gained and the work un- taken.

The purposes of the first year in forestry project are to instruct s and girls in the principles of planting and to encourage them establishing forest plantations, tree planting may be chosen by and girls who have passed their lfth birthday but have not ched their eighteenth at the time enrollment. Each one is re- ired to plant 1,000 trees on land uited for agricultural crops and re no forest growth is now ding. They must protect the ntation from damage by stock, p a complete record of the work e including number of hours' t, etc., and make a complete re- rt of their work to the county b leader or county club agent on before November 1st.

In the counties of Cattaraugus, enango, Delaware, Genesee, Jef- son, Livingston, Monroe, Oneida, ondaga, Ontario, Orange, Oswego, ego, Rensselaer and Schuyler, members of these clubs have ced with the Conservation De- rtment orders ranging in size from 00 for a county to 100,000, the gest group of orders coming from ego county, with Delaware sec- with 86,000; Oswego third with ,000 and Chenango fourth with ,000, the orders covering every riety of trees grown in the state's rseries.

In the choice of trees, white pine ds with a total of 154,500, Nor- y spruce second with a total of ,500 and red pine third with a al of 73,000.

Each of these 4-H. plantations l in a few years serve to demon- ate in the locality in which it is nted the advantages that will low the reforestation of idle non- icultural land. It will also bring o the reforesting movement the eration that will live to harvest own forest crop and make of arge percentage of 4-H. club mem- s advocates of consistent reforest- .

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press).

Philadelphia—Wealth of kings who ruled 5,000 years ago has been revealed by graves found in Mesopotamia by an expedition of the University of Pennsylvania and the British Museum. Gold and silver ornaments were common. One manicure set of solid gold has been discovered.

Leningrad—Lenin mountains will be the name of a range more than 1,000 miles long and 300 miles wide with some peaks 11,000 feet high, discovered in the Yakutsh region by a scientific expedition.

Chicago—Indians of the medicine lodge can temper copper and make it hard enough to cut steel, says Chief Reginald Ishkosh of the Menominee tribe. Once the secret of the Great Lakes Indians, such tempering was supposed to be a lost art.

New York—Tracy Richardson, soldier of fortune and explorer, is organizing an expedition into unexplored southern Mexico where he once saw hieroglyphics on cliff banks of rivers and other marks of an ancient civilization.

Salisbury, Rhodesia—Queer paintings found by farmers on the roof of a cave, in the opinion of an archaeologist are old Egyptian art. There are hundreds of antique crude paintings on unclothed bushmen in south African caves, but the figures in the new discoveries have Egyptian costumes.

Lancaster, Ohio—A mummy of an Indian princess, in a shroud of woven reeds, has been found by Boy Scouts. Experts think it is the body of a daughter of Tarhe of the Crane, chief of the Indian village which long since was on the site of Lancaster.

New York—On the walls of a children's chapel of the Church of the Heavenly Rest there are to be extracts from Mother Goose. Aesop's Fables and Alice in Wonderland. The pastor, the Rev. Dr. Henry Darlington, says religion for children must reach down to the level of the child mind.

London—Old folk songs sung by early English emigrants in mountain districts of the eastern part of the United States and forgotten by their descendants in England are being popularized by the English folk dance society.

New York—It is costing Frederick Martin Davies $50,000 to prefer Harvard to Annapolis as the place for his education. His father's will, probated during the big war when the son was eight years old, provided the principal of the fund should be paid to the boy on graduation from the naval academy. If he went to another institution he would receive only the income while a student. Davies is a senior at Harvard. His father was a member of the Stock Exchange.

Capetown—There is Baron Byng of Vimy, who introduced tanks at Cambrai, but the hero just now is John Byng of Table mountain. Byng, a Tyro, was linked by a rope to an experienced climber. The veteran fell down a gorge. Byng slipped the rope over a rock and held it in place for hours, with his companion dangling. One of Byng's hands was crushed when aid came.

SAUGERTIES.

Saugerties, March 7.—The Rev. E. L. Howe, pastor of the Trinity Church, this village, preached the Lenten sermon in St. Luke's Church, Catskill, last Wednesday evening.

There are 609 pupils in the Saugerties schools, who are depositors in the school saving system, out of a total enrollment of 743 which is a very good showing in this village for the children who are interested in the work of saving.

Mrs. Sidney Cree was operated upon for appendicitis at the Beeres Sanitarium last Wednesday by Dr. E. F. Sibley, assisted by Dr. Mary Gage-Day of Kingston and Dr. B. W. Gifford.

Robert Ball of Poughkeepsie spent the past few days visiting friends and relatives in this village.

A large number of officers and members of Ulster Lodge, F. & A. M., attended the district convention held in Coxsackie last Tuesday afternoon and evening.

A birthday surprise party was given to Mrs. LeRoy Snyder at her home on Market street last Tuesday afternoon. There were many beautiful and useful gifts given to Mrs. Snyder in honor of the occasion and all enjoyed the delicious dinner served.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Reformed Church has elected the following officers: Mrs. John C. Shults, president; Mrs. F. G. Phelps, vice president; Mrs. J. V. Wemple, secretary; Mrs. F. T. Lewis, treasurer.

The bungalow of Ralph Hendricks at the foot of Partition street has been sold to Joseph Mince who will make it his home.

An operation was performed upon Rose Benafiglio of Glasco last Wednesday morning by Doctors Sibley and Gifford.

Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Williams will move from the Schryver building on Market street and will occupy the rooms in the Abbott building on Main street.

A toxin-antitoxin clinic will be held by Health Officer Dr. John C. Kamp, assisted by Public Health Nurse Miss Anna Cassidy in the Glasco school building on Friday, March 11.

The Saugerties Gas Light Company has received a large shipment of pipe which will be used in the extension of its line to Flatbush. William Doyle, Jr., will draw the pipe to the place where it is to be used.

A large number of local people attended the Auto Show in Kingston during the past week.

Many alterations are being made at the store to be occupied by Styles Bros. in Main street. This store will serve ice cream, candy, soda and luncheon to the public.

Starting Saturday, evening, March 12, the A. & P. stores in this village will close at nine o'clock which is one hour earlier than usual.

Mr. and Mrs. Poultney Bigelow of Malden-on-Hudson are visiting in New York city where Mr. Bigelow will address a society.

William F. Keenan, who has been on a trip through the west in the interest of the Saugerties Manufacturing Company, has returned to his home on Washington avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward King, Sr., who were called to Cumberland, Md., on account of the illness of their daugher, returned to their home on the south side.

Mrs. Lillian Marcey, who has been visiting relatives in Troy, N. Y., has returned to this village.

A meeting of the Saugerties Monday Club was held at the home of Mrs. Albert Carnright on Market street today. Miss Lyon of Albany gave a very interesting address on China in which all of the persons were interested. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Russell.

Bernard Levey of Brooklyn was in this village Wednesday last attending the funeral of a cousin.

A very delightful birthday party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Kamp on Elm street last Saturday afternoon in honor of their daughter, Miss Dorothy Mae Kamp, who is one year old. Many beautiful gifts were received and all present enjoyed refreshments. Those present were Miss Shirley Crotty and mother; Miss Alice Longendyke and mother; Master James Kelly and mother; Master Richard Whittaker and mother; Master Robert Hunt and mother; Mrs. John C. Kamp; Mrs. Ella Longendyke; Mrs. Raymond Benton; Miss Alice Beaton and Mrs. Harold Kamp.

The senior play in the high school auditorium on Friday and Saturday evenings was a marked success and the cast played before a large audience each time. Those who took part deserve much credit also their coach Miss Kimmey under whose capable direction the members rehearsed. Many out-of-town people were present at each performance.

A new steam-heating system is being installed in the Van Keuren building on Market street.

Attended Girls' Conference.

The Misses Ruth Lichty, Caroline Herrmann, Eva Shook, Dorothy Kennedy and Nellie Wesley attended the Y. W. C. A. Business Girls' Week End Conference held last week and over Sunday at the Children's Village, Dobbs Ferry, representing the Kingston Y. W. C. A.

Boston Braves Off to Good Start

With Manager Dave Bancroft Directing the Training the Boston Boys Are Traveling At a Fast Clip and With Great Entuhsiasm.

St. Petersburg, Fla, March 7 (AP). —The spirit is unquestionably willing in the camp of the Boston Braves. Time will tell if the flesh is weak The work of preparation for the National League season is being attacked with an enthusiasm that may bear fruit when the campaign gets under way With Manager Dave Bancroft leading the way the Boston boys are traveling at speed giving them at the moment a possible edge in condition on the other ten clubs training in Florida.

Bancroft has some training ideas of his own. He ordered soft pedal tactics for batting practice at the beginning of the training period and contrary to the usual batting speed indulged in from the jump, the Braves spent their time bunting for the first week and the pitchers tossed on the sidelines instead of the mound.

"This is mainly to protect the pitchers," Bancroft said

"In practice when sharp hits ring from the bats, although the pitchers are putting nothing on the ball, there is an unconscious inclination to bear down and soon they are cutting loose at a much faster clip than should be the case before they have had some good warm weather to loosen them up"

The pitchers have reacted favorably to this program. Charley Robertson, of no-hit fame when he was wearing the spangles of the Chicago White Sox, declared himself never better. Hearn, furnishing with Mogridge, the lefthand pitching staff of the club, now that Cooney is out of the picture for the time being with a chipped bone in his elbow, seems almost ready to pitch a game

Smith, regarded as one of the mainstays of the club, is taking it easier but Knight, late of the Phillies, has struck a fast early stride as have Mills and Holshouser, two promising recruits. Benton, Genewich, and Werts are available again and Edwards, graduated to the Braves from Providence last season, seems to have won a definite place on the staff.

J. Francis Hogan, a big young catcher, who hits the ball hard, is about to win a place as assistant to Taylor and Gibson A short time ago he was a Boston High School player. He joined the Braves last year after serving an apprenticeship at Lynn and acquired major league ways so readily that for a time this spring he was a holdout He has been a striking figure in the camp, using a big bat as a letter of introduction

Eddie Moore, whose services were acquired from Pittsburgh last season will play third base with the veteran Andy High in reserve Manager Bancroft will again take care of short Walter Gautreau, diminutive second baseman, will probably be back at his station but Herbert Thomas, almost as broad as he is long, will be kept as an understudy Two first basemen will also be retained, Dick Burrus, of last year's team, and Jacques Fournier, late of Brooklyn, being slated. Fournier, not so young as he was, can still hit at a mighty pace, but is not so fast of foot as Burrus.

YOUNG JUDAEANS DEFEAT AMSTERDAM LIGHTNING A. C.

The Young Judaeans gave the Lightning A C. of Amsterdam a trimming, 25 to 19, on the Community Centre court Saturday night. The defeat was the first suffered by the Amsterdam boys who could not cope with the fast Judaeans especially in the final period At the end of the first frame the upstate team was one marker in the lead, 15 to 14, but in the third quarter the local lads started a spurt which the Lightning quintet tried to check but could do no more than hold the Judaeans at even score. The score at the end of the third quarter stood 19 to 19 In the last quarter the Judaeans did their best work and rolled up a score of 25 against the 19 possessed by the visitors

The Judaeans will travel to Amsterdam on Saturday, March 26, to play a game on the court of the Lightning A C It is expected that many will witness the encounter as both fives have numerous followers There was a large number of spectators at the Community Center when the two teams contested Saturday night.

McTague and Brown Are Out

Lou Brown and Hugh McTague Will Not Manage Colonials This Season and Have Notified Fair Grounds Officers to That Effect.

The Kingston Colonials will not be reorganized this season by Lou Brown and Hugh McTague, and Manager Brown has notified the Fair Grounds authorities to that effect

Some time ago Mr. McTague announced that he was through with baseball this year, and since then Mr Brown has been looking for some one who would take an active part in the management of the team, but without success.

Lou Brown's health is not of the best and he stated today that owing to that fact he did not care to take the sole responsibility of managing a baseball team this summer He said that he would notify the Fair Grounds authorities that if they had any one else seeking the use of the grounds to let them have it

If Mr Brown had been able to get in touch with an active and responsible man to share the responsibilities of managing a ball club, he said that he would have gone ahead and reorganized the champion Colonials

Whether Kingston will be represented by a team this year at the Fair Grounds as fast as the old Colonials is a question that still remains unanswered.

Woman Spectator Hurt at Bike Race

New York, March 7 (AP)—The first serious accident in a six-day bicycle race ever to involve a spectator here marked the inaugural of the 42nd international grind in Madison Square Garden.

Scarcely an hour after fifteen teams of foreign and American riders started their long marathon at nine last night, Emil Rohrbach, of France, was caught in a jam and after smashing into another rider, catapulted through the air and crashed with his bicycle into a box just off the track.

One of the pedals on the bike struck Mrs. Frank D. Walker, of Detroit, over the eye, inflicting a deep gash that required hospital treatment. Rohrbach was knocked unconscious and suffered cuts in his head and abdomen He returned to the race early today, however, after his wounds had been stitched together. Mr. Walker, who occupied the box with his wife, was uninjured.

The crash marked the climax of a furious hour of jamming that started shortly after the race began.

Princeton Must Win Both Games

New York, March 7 (AP)—Dartmouth, with schedule for the season complete and resting in second place, still could look forward today to a possible championship in the Eastern Intercollegiate Basketball League.

Dartmouth closed the season with victory over Cornell Saturday but the win was not enough to push the Green ahead of Princeton, which holds first place in the standing by a few percentage points with six victories in eight games. The Tigers, however, must play Columbia Wednesday and Pennsylvania Saturday to complete the schedule.

A victory and a loss in the two games will bring about a tie with Dartmouth for top honors, each with seven wins and three losses. Princeton must win both contests to clinch the title.

Penn, with five victories in nine games, faced a tie with Cornell for third place if the Ithacans close the campaign Saturday by taking the measure of Yale Columbia, now tied with Cornell in fourth place, has won four matches while losing five and can further complicate the schedule by defeating Princeton Wednesday Yale has won only one game in nine starts.

National Hockey League Contests

New York, March 7 (AP).—Methodical "plugging" to the goal of the Stanley Cup play off series for the world hockey championship faced all but one of the six leading sectional contenders this week in the National Hockey League. The three top teams in the international and American groups of the circuit meet in the little series following the close of the campaign late this month.

While the New York Rangers, pace-setters in the American group, the Boston Bruins, in second place, and the Chicago Black Hawks, third team, saw little danger in the coming week, the Montreal Maroons had a desperate week in prospect to hold third place in the international section Ottawa leaders in the latter group, and the Canadians in the second place, had little trouble ahead.

The Maroons, battling to keep ahead of the New York Americans, play the Canadians Tuesday, Ottawa Thursday, and the dangerous Toronto Maple Leafs Saturday. Victory in all three is consideerd almost certain to clinch a place for Montreal in the play-off

Canadians showed the best record of the past week, winning contests from Detroit, Chicago and Pittsburgh The last place Toronto Maple Leafs continued a hopeless struggle by whipping both Pittsburgh and Detroit Pittsburgh took three beatings and Boston and the New York Americans, playing a two-game series, shut each other out in dividing the pair

Volley Ball Results at "Y"

The Kingston "Y" volley ball team received a defeat at the hands of the crack team from Amsterdam Saturday afternoon on the local Y court. The first two games went to the upstaters 15 to 7 and 15 to 6. The third game was the only one that the Kingstonians could snatch from the fast team of the northern region and bagged it 16 to 14. Two other games followed and the Amsterdam warriors repeated what they accomplished in the initial games The scores which were favorable to the visiting team were 15 to 4 and 15 to 6.

The Amsterdam men could certainly play the game and displayed their knowledge of the sport to a great degree. The main point getters pleased the fans and the premier scorer could have downed the local men single handed it appeared.

In the game which came third on the list and which Kingston snatched from the fast visiting team it seemed as if the locals were getting the breaks but followers of the sport manifested the idea that the right combination was had by the Kingston team in the particular game and proved favorable results for the local volley ball team

The Amsterdam aggregation appeared on the court like regular champions in their white uniforms which immediately attracted the attention of the on-lookers.

While the upstate men in their attractive uniforms were drubbing the Kingstonians a team from South Manchester, Conn., arrived and at once decided that it would be a very agreeable task to take on the Amsterdam team. The local management heard of the desire and arranged for the match.

But to the disappointment of the anxious Nutmeg State warriors they were forced to take the lower berths in the two games that they played with the Amsterdam men. The scores of the contests stood 15 to 7 at the end of both games.

The South Manchester players then stacked up against the men from the Y and although they started in fast time they lost three contests to the Kingstonians. The final scores of the three games were 15-10, 15-13 and 15-13. In a game which followed the three the visitors tired the local volleyball exponents and took the contest 15-10. A fifth game was started and although the Kingstonians showed signs of weakness a verbal fusillade from the spectators pepped up the Y men and they took the last contest 15-13. Their record for the afternoon stood 5 games won and the same tally of losses but those who know the game and witnessed the battles consider the record made by Kingston as an outstanding one due to the competition they met.

In the Southern Training Camps

New York, March 7 (AP).—The "food" cure is to be administered to holdouts at the Yankee training camp at St. Petersburg, Fla., and the results are scheduled to solve one of the real mysteries of the present youthful baseball season.

"If a player can sign his name at the bottom of a dinner check, he can also sign at the bottom of a contract," Miller Huggins explained in announcing that lunch would not be served to any of the enemy—the term applied by the mite manager to holdouts.

But as to who the holdouts were, Huggins would say nothing. Although Herb Pennock and Bob Meusel are known to be on the list, several other Yankees also are suspected of determined salary designs. Huggins's words were considered significant in view of the marshalling here today of the main body of the Yanks, headed by Babe Ruth.

The quiet of the pleasant Clearwater camp of the Brooklyn Dodgers was shattered Sunday by the arrival of Wilbert Robinson's infielders and outfielders. Bob McGraw, holdout pitcher, was in the group and Johnny Butler, infielder, who reported with serious intestinal trouble last spring, came in again this year with a heavy cold and was promptly put to bed for treatment.

The Giants' camp at Sarasota was quiet over the week end for most of the expected athletes have already gathered here. Chief interest was in the probable lineups to be put up against the St. Louis Browns in exhibition games this week.

Business Men's Volley Ball Games

The Business Men's Volley Ball League at the Y. M. C. A. got under way a little earlier than usual Saturday afternoon to make way for the Varsity Sextets in their efforts against the District Champs, Amsterdam. Number two court was the first to get action started with the Porks stacking up against the Hams. The three games of the match were full of fun and noise with the Porks emerging the victors of all three games. The scores were 15-7, 15-13 and 15-7.

Number one court was not very far behind number two in getting under way only Captain Brown had considerable trouble in finding men enough to make a creditable showing in the match between the Salomies and the Beefs The Beefs, however, are traveling at a pretty good clip right now and it will take a good outfit to bump them off. They won all three games by the scores of 15-7, 15-9, and 15-7.

The third and last Afternoon League game was then played on number one court between the Balognas and the Liverwursts and they were full of action Captain Lowe was bound and determined that his team would go through the season with the 1,000 percentage he has maintained thus far but the fates were not with him. His Balognas sailed right through the first two games without many frights and started into the third and last when things started to break bad. The Liverwursts ran the score up to 13-4 before the Balognas got all eight cylinders working but it was too late and the final scores read 15-9, 15-9, and 12-15.

RESULTS IN THE JUNIOR SUNDAY SCHOOL LEAGUE.

The Congregational five asserted their right to the cup as winners of the Junior Sunday School League when they trimmed the Clinton Avenue team 50 to 13 Saturday on the Y court. The winning aggregation had little trouble in keeping the early lead that they secured. Krum the large center of the Congregational team, tossed 15 fields and 2 fouls into the netted hoop for his five, while Quick, of the Clintons, scored 4 markers for the vanquished quintet.

The Comforter-Presbyterian game was rather interesting as the teams were more evenly matched. The final score of the battle was Comforter 24, Presbyterians 17. Kieffer did the star scoring for the winners with 14 markers. Post, of the Presbyterians, chalked up 7 freemen for his team.

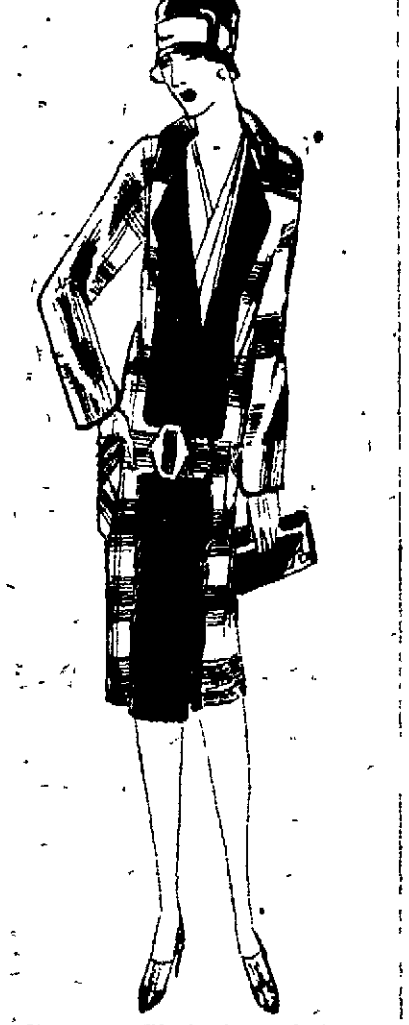
ELEANOR GUNN ON FASHIONS

GENOA, LIKE PARIS, LONDON, NEW YORK, AND CAIRO, WEARS RED, PREFERRING THE WINE SHADES

Genoa, Italy—It is always surprising—almost amazing, in fact—to realize the instantaneous quality of fashion. Let Paris or New York decide a thing and all the world follows—that is, the world peopled by women who have an interest in fashions.

Paris, London, Cairo—it's all the same—and now added to the formidable list of sponsors of Burgundy, Bordeaux and other reds is Genoa, not forgetting the little bit of Sicily permitted us en route.



Fronts of Black Kasha Relieve a Straightline Sports Coat of Ombre Gray and Black Plaid, Which Is Smartly Belted Across the Front and Trimmed with Braid on the Seams, Which Connect the Kasha with the Plaid.

Mussolini and the Pope are taking a hand in molding, or trying to mold, the sartorial ideas of the women of Italy. They both criticize modern dress as exploited by the French maisons. They are for modesty—longer skirts, more discreet necklines, less flamboyant colors. How they will succeed is a question, but the guess is that the inspiration will be Parisian and that modifications will be slight, if the movement is to be successful.

At present, the Italian woman one sees about Genoa shows a strong partiality for wine colors, and a similar taste in costume to that advanced by the French and adopted more or less generally.

EVERYDAY GOOD THINGS

A good, nourishing soup, served with croutons or crackers makes a good meal in itself.

Bisque of Chicken.—Cook a large chicken with three or four stalks of celery and an onion chopped fine and water to cover. When the meat slips from the bones skim the soup, remove the bones and chop very fine. Return to the heat and add the meat to the soup, thicken with a tablespoonful each of butter and flour cooked together, add a cupful of milk, a pinch of soda, a tablespoonful of minced parsley and a cupful of cracker crumbs. Bring to the boiling point and serve.

Pea Chowder.—Soak overnight one cupful of split peas. In the morning drain, cover with cold water, add a pinch of soda and simmer for three hours. Fry brown with one onion and a slice of fat pork. Add the drained peas, one can of corn and a cupful of milk. Simmer for half an hour, season with salt, pepper and melted butter, serve very hot with split toasted crackers.

Salmon Salad.—Mix one and one half cupfuls of flaked salmon with one-half cupful of celery, two tablespoonfuls of chopped green peppers, one small onion chopped, salt and pepper to taste. Peel two tomatoes and cut them into dice and mix with the salad, or cut into quarters and use as a garnish. Arrange on a bed of lettuce and serve with mayonnaise dressing.

Eggless, Butterless, Milkless Cake.—Boil together one cupful each of sugar and water, two cupfuls of raisins, one-eighth of a grated nutmeg, one teaspoonful of cloves, a pinch of salt and one-half cupful of lard. When cool add two cupfuls of flour, one cupful of molasses, one-half teaspoonful of baking powder and one teaspoonful of soda dissolved in a little water. Beat well and bake in a sheet.

5667. Silver brocade and chiffon are here combined. The design is also attractive in georgette or figured silk and satin.

The pattern is cut in 3 sizes: 16, 18 and 20 years. An 18 year size requires 3 yards of the figured and 2 yards of the plain material 40 inches wide.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any person on receipt of 15c in coin or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Kingston, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

Fashion Book Notice.

Send 15c in coin or stamps to The Freeman for our up-to-date Spring and Summer Book of Fashions, showing color plate, and containing 500 designs of ladies', misses' and children's patterns, a concise and comprehensive article on dressmaking, also some points for the needle (illustrating 30 of the various simple stitches), all valuable hints to the home dressmaker.

A Chicken Pie Supper.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Reformed Church of the Comforter will serve another of their chicken pie suppers with Mrs. Daly as caterer in the church hall Tuesday evening, March 8. The supper will be served from 5 to 8 o'clock. The public is invited to patronize the ladies. The following is the bill of fare:

Chicken pie and gravy, mashed potatoes, peas, cabbage salad, jelly, celery, pickles, bread, (wheat and rye) and butter, apple pie, ice cream and coffee.

D. of A. Pinochle Party.

Vanderlyn Council, No. 41, Daughters of America, will hold a pinochle party at Mechanics' Hall on March 14. Playing will start at 8 o'clock. Prizes will be awarded and refreshments served. The public is cordially invited.

Dinner and Dance Gowns Stress Filmy Black Lace

Lace of every description for spring and summer, from the heavy Italian to the sheerest type of chantilly, so says the fashion forecaster. Outstanding is the all-black chiffon and chantilly frock, posed most frequently over a flesh-colored slip, of which the model in the picture is a most charming exponent. An advance style message from Paris stresses the trimming of the black lace frock with that of a different tint, either white, pale pink or beige.

Chartreuse Crystal and Pearls in Long Strands

Pearls continue to enjoy an unprecedented vogue, and, strange as it may seem, have lost none of their lure, as is usually the result of such circumstances. In order to correspond fully with the mode, chartreuse crystal is combined with them in long rope strands, short necklaces and the flat collar effects. Some of the open necklaces have graduated drops of the chartreuse crystal, others just tiny alternating ringlets. Earrings and bracelets combine the two in many new and attractive designs. One especially striking set consisting of earrings and bracelets is composed of large, faceted crystals. The earrings are of the button type and are surrounded with a rim of seed pearls. Seed pearls also compose the bracelet that is divided into sections by the large crystals.

Silk Fur Coats

Silk fur coats are popular again this year. Those made of antelope, kid, caracul, of leopard skin, gazelle or pony are particularly good. These are not necessarily expensive coats. They are the pride and joy of those women who adore to look smartly dressed during the winter months and who can neither afford expensive furs nor can they undertake to carry them around the streets upon their slender shoulders.

Cannibal Mode Seen

Even the cannibal contributes something to the make-up of the modern English miss. The very newest evening frocks are very similar to those worn by the belles of the Solomon Isles. Long ostrich plumes are substituted by the civilized Mayfairite for the tumeric leaves and hibiscus fiber of the dusky debutante. The bodice worn with the new feather evening dress is tight-fitting and made of embroidered chiffon.

Gleam of Gold

All that glitters may not be gold, but there is no doubt that so far as evening fashions go this is a winter when the gleam of gold and silver gives scintillant beauty to a mode that has infinite allure. Even the most simple gowns have intricate designs worked out in thousands of tiny crystals, while black or dark-toned velvets are effective backgrounds for motifs done in pearls or rhinestones.

New Fur Fashion

Spirals have come to be as well recognized a motif in the furrier's art as chevrons, which dominated fur garments for so long. One of the newest adaptations of this mode is shown in an evening coat of gold and silver mesh, trimmed with kolinsky. The huge stole collar forms a spiral, which connects with another spiral formed by the band at the hem.

Bustles Return

British dressmakers are placing bustles on the new evening frocks. Those recently seen were made entirely of flowers of blending realistic shades of mauve, pink and purple with black centers. They made an attractive decoration.

For Older Women

The older woman who wants the longer skirt suitable to her years may choose a gun metal stocking with a black shoe or a very sheer black stocking that looks practically the same as gun metal.

Genoa, Italy.—It is nothing short of amazing how similar fashions are in different parts of the world. Let Paris adopt Burgundy, and in a surprisingly short time it is worn all over; as, for instance, in Genoa, where it is conspicuously popular.

Almost every woman feels the need of a scarf or shawl to throw over her shoulders when in evening dress, this being especially true on shipboard, where shawls prevail.

Italy is the land of coral, and tourists are always seen pricing and purchasing it. Filigree silver jewelry is also of great interest, especially here.

At a very smart dinner party of ten given in Genoa, the hostess wore a dinner gown of Parma violet chiffon and a long chain of cut amethysts.

All shades of dark red are noted in Genoa, especially for millinery, which, as elsewhere, was usually of felt.

Gazelle, antelope and novelty lightweight and colored furs are favorites in Italy; also navy blue and black cloth coats collared and deeply bordered in natural lynx and other light furs.

A deep chiffon dinner gown elaborately spangled with gold was one of the smartest dresses worn to the Genoa opera.

Small hats have been seen everywhere in traveling.

ROSY-TAN AND MAUVE TONES SPONSORED IN HOSE WORN AT NEW YORK SMART LUNCHEON RENDEZVOUS.

French Openwork Cloved Types Sponsored at Sherry's and Pierre's—Plain Hosiery Advocated by Ritz Guests.

New York.—A survey of hosiery shades sponsored by smartly-dressed women at the fashionable luncheon rendezvous reveals a marked leaning towards the tan and mauve casts, which, in the majority of cases, show the rosy overtone. There has been much discussion lately regarding the yellowish-tan hose and their importance in the spring demands, but from actual observation of the class most representative of style tendencies, it seems that the rosy cast maintains its position, so far at least, in the early spring hosiery demands.

At Sherry's, Pierre's and along Park avenue, the French cloved hose were favored outstandingly. They were noted in beige, nude, and light tan and, since most French hose favor the warm shades, were emphasized especially in the pinks tones. These stockings were noted with costumes and shoes of various colors, and only when it was distinctly apparent that a matching tone was desired throughout were stockings chosen to match the color of the shoe. Two or three instances noted showed the darker tan stockings worn to match brown suede shoes. Again, the darker tan registered to match the color of the brown fur coat.

Shadow Clox Are Noted.

The gunmetal or blue-fox hose appeared frequently with black shoes, and even with tan or brown shoes, although in such cases the coat was usually of gray or black. The light grays were sponsored only when the shoe or coat was of light gray tone.

At the Ritz, the French clox hose were not as marked, although several instances of the shadow clox were noted. In two instances, they were of the tan-brown shade and matched exactly the color of the shoe. In another, the mauve-gray was worn with a dark brown shoe, and matched the color of the coat. However, the rosy cast again accepted colors chosen. Tans were the order of the day, with the darker gray and mauve tones in second favor. The tans were notably darker; only with a black shoe, especially in suede, did the beige-tans appear. The gunmetal with black heel had a fair representation, always of course, with the black shoe. No instance of the [illegible] hose appeared throughout the [illegible].

Order Was Placed

The teacher of the kindergarten Sunday school class was asking each member if there was a little brother or sister at home who might soon be eligible for admission to the class. One little boy, as he heard the proud responses of the children in front of him, felt that he was rapidly losing caste.

"No ma'am," he admitted reluctantly, then added in sudden desperation, "But we're going to get one!"

The Only Girl

Jack had just asked Jill to marry him and she had murmured "Yes."

"Jack, dear," said Jill after a long silence, "am I the only girl —"

"Jill darling," he interrupted, "don't ask me if you are the only girl I have ever loved. You know it as well as I do."

"That wasn't the question at all, Jack," she answered. "I was just going to ask you if I was the only girl who would have you."

Financial and Commercial

New York, March 7 (AP).—Apparently having exhausted all the good news in sight, the stock market continued to lose ground today under the pressure of selling for both accounts. Liquidation probably was stimulated by publication of the 1926 earnings reports of the American Woolen, Marland and United States Rubber Companies, all of which made unfavorable comparison with 1925. Trading showed a marked contraction in volume.

Bullish activities were not abandoned, about a dozen issues believed to be under pool manipulation showing independent strength. National Biscuit was bid up over three points to 104½; the highest price in five years, and a good demand developed for International Paper and Union Bag and Paper.

U. S Steel common was fairly well supported by buying based on the belief that the present $7 dividend would be maintained on the additional stock to be issued after the distribution of the recently proposed 40 per cent stock dividend. Independent steels were in rather free supply, with pressure directed chiefly against Republic. Oils and motors developed several points of weakness and the merchandising issues failed to make much response to the reported increase in earnings by some of the large chain store companies last month.

Talk of a possible adverse decision by the Interstate Commerce Commission in a case involving the "recapture clause" and indications of a slowing up in the loadings of general merchandise had a bearish effect on the railroad shares.

Still Worship the Moon

Some of the most general superstitions concerning the weather are those in which the moon figures. The worship of the moon, one of the oldest of false religions, has not died out in this country. Many persons in some of the more superstitious countries of Europe will curtsy to a new moon and turn the money in their pockets for luck. In parts of England it is considered unlucky to kill a pig in the wane of the moon.

Parties Cannot Exclude Negroes

United States Supreme Court Overthrows Texas Statute Under Which Negroes Could Not Vote in Democratic Primaries — "White Man's Party" Unconstitutional.

Washington, March 7 (AP).—The constitutional guarantee giving negroes the right to vote applies to primaries as well as general elections in the opinion of the Supreme court.

Overthrowing a Texas statute under which negroes are prohibited from voting in Democratic primaries, the court found today that even though the primary is not mentioned in the federal constitution, federal jurisdiction is sufficient to bar the states from making primary laws out of harmony with the constitutional guarantee of equal rights for the races.

"States may do a good deal of classifying that it is difficult to believe rational," said the court in a unanimous opinion, "but there are limits, and it is too clear for extended argument that color cannot be made the basis of a statutory classification affecting the right set up in this case."

Injustice of Law Apparent.

The court said it was not even necessary to take into account the Fifteenth Amendment, which gives negroes the right to vote, because the injustice of the Texas statute was sufficiently apparent when considered merely in the light of the Fourteenth Amendment, which prohibited the states from making any law to abridge the rights of citizens on account of race or color.

The decision was handed down in the case of L. A. Nixon, an El Paso negro, who sought unsuccessfully in the lower courts to recover damages against election judges who refused to permit him to vote at a Democratic primary election. Moorfield Storey of Boston, his counsel, told the Supreme court that 370,000 negro voters in Texas had been excluded as ineligible to participate in Democratic primaries.

Claimed Right to Pick Members.

Declaring that the Democratic party in Texas was a private organization, which financed itself, one of whose functions was to select candidates to be voted for at the general elections, the state of Texas asserted on the argument that to deny such an organization the right to lay down its qualifications for membership would be to deny the members fundamental rights as American citizens.

It was well known, the state announced, that the Democratic party in Texas was a white man's party, and that white people have just as much right to organize their own private political party as had citizens generally to vote at general elections

Society Notes

College Women's Club.

Dr. Putnam Cady will address the College Women's Club on Tuesday evening. Miss Helen Elmendorf of 254 Delaware avenue will be the hostess.

The Coetrie.

On Saturday afternoon The Coterie met at the home of Mrs. Hall. There were two exceedingly interesting and informing papers given, one on "Mayan Ideographs and Poetry," dealing largely with Mystics of the people, by Mrs. Russell, and the other entitled, "Is the American Indian an Immigrant?" by Mrs. Watts. The Coterie had as its guest of honor Mrs. Lowe of Port Ewen. The next meeting of The Coterie will be with Mrs. Watts.

A Birthday Party.

Miss Gertrude DePuy had a birthday party in honor of her thirteenth birthday. All the members of her Sunday school class were there. Among those present were the Misses Evelyn Brown, Doris Aberly, Winifred Smith, Ruth Fitch, Ruth Dergemann, Frances and Doris Fine of Stone Ridge and Ethel Wheeler. Many games were played. The room was decorated in yellow. Miss DePuy received many lovely gifts. A good time was enjoyed by all.

PORT EWEN.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Reformed Church will meet at the home of Mrs. Chauncey Freer Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. A good attendance is desired. The membership contest closes at this meeting.

A very impressive sacramental service was held in the Reformed Church Sunday evening with a large congregation in attendance. The Rev. Thomas S. Braithwaite of Shokan officiated. Three young ladies were received into the church at this service. The choir was ably assisted by W. A. Vandervoort with cornet.

Odds and Ends

Circle No. 3, Ladies' Aid Society of the St. James M. E. Church, will hold a meeting in the parlors of the church on Thursday afternoon, March 10, at 2 o'clock.

Card Party Tonight.

Tonight at the Jewish Community Center the Young Men's and Young Women's Hebrew Association will hold its card party. Progressive bridge and pinochle will be played. Games to start promptly at 8 o'clock. The public is invited.

At England's Tip

Land's End, Southernmost Tip of England.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

THE coast of England's southwestern peninsula that tapers out to Land's End is an unfriendly coast with its heavy sea and winds and thick fogs, and a dangerous one. Its rocks are ever ready to tear holes in the stoutest vessel; its currents are ever ready to drive them on. But it is a picturesque coast; a wonderfully beautiful coast, both upon summer days and in winter storms; a coast with many harbors, none too easy of entrance by reason of rocks and tides, many impossible for any but the smallest craft, but all made as serviceable as natural difficulties permit.

There is Penzance, the sunny pleasure-loving little sea city, whence came those picturesque stage pirates, that made tuneful our youth. The coast is no more beautiful here on Mounts Bay than elsewhere to east or west; not so rugged or so wild as on Cornwall's northern shore, but the curve of green cliff is very smooth and lovely, the sun shines warmly; the roses bloom; every baby ripple murmurs a sea story; every tiny breeze brings a legend. It is a fascinating place not only for what it is, but what it suggests.

There is Little Mousehole, on her right, beyond Newlyn—lovely Newlyn, beloved of fishermen and artists. Mousehole ("Mousel," in local speech) was an important port before London was a town.

As for Marazion, to her left, who shall measure her years? According to Cornish history, "in the days of Ezekiel the prophet" it was already an important city, to which Phoenician merchants came for tin. For a town which has entertained Phoenicians and giants and has looked for centuries at a castled island floating in a marvelous sea, Marazion is remarkable dull. No one goes there except to visit the island which gives the bay its name.

St. Michael's Mount.

St. Michael's Mount, little brother to Mont St. Michel off the Breton coast, is a rocky islet 230 feet high and a half mile from shore, with which it is connected by a natural causeway uncovered for about three hours at ordinary low tides. With southwest gales the island may remain an island for weeks, and with high seas be inaccessible even to boats. It is a most picturesque pile; its steep grassy slopes, in springtime yellow with a million daffodils, crowned with the irregular jumble of chapel and castle and ringed by a gleaming sea.

It has much history. Like the other St. Michael, it stood once in a forest and was pagan, Christian, druidical; it has been tenanted by saint and sinner, soldier, monk, and knight. Dearest to the heart, perhaps, is the story of Cormoran, whom later Jack-the-Giant-Killer slew, dearest perhaps because of the memories of little girls and boys who loved the story long ago.

We may follow the coast-line eastward and southward to the Lizard, passing the great wireless station upon Poldhu, or cut across the little neck of land to Falmouth, a very fair harbor, Megavissey, beyond, is but a fishing port, where pilchards sometimes become sardines; but Fowey, to which we next come, has considerable past importance and present pride.

Once it was one of the great seaports of the kingdom. Boats from Fowey sailed by scores to the Crusades, to the siege of Calais, to the plundering of Normandy. "Fowey gallants" swaggered on all the then known seas, and when not busy with strangers turned to trimming their rivals nearer home. Finally they were accused of piracy and Edward IV confiscated their ships and gave them to Dartmouth.

Eastward from Fowey upon the coast, in a cleft so narrow, so jagged so rocky one wonders why men chose it for a home, lies Polperro, the most picturesque, the most unspoiled of Cornish fishing ports, retaining all its ancient dignity of life and labor unflattered by the summer villas now beginning to crowd the cliffs above its head.

Polperro a Charming Place.

Polperro is a fishing town but it did not always depend upon fish for a living. In the days when smuggling was a profession, if not an art, Polperro had few rivals, and, reading old tales, one sees quite clearly why men chose these clefts for habitations. Conveniently near are coves and caves, undiscoverable by the keenest customs officers, and boatmen could sail in and out of these narrow rock-bound harbors fearing no pursuit.

Let us look attentively at Polperro, at its closely huddled houses, built on and in and of the rock; its roses and fuchsias and clematis, which bloom as luxuriantly as in southern climes; for these rock clefts are sheltered from winter winds and warmed by the southern sun; at its little rock-bound gleaming harbor, where at high tide the boats rock lazily and at low water a thousand silvery gulls pick up their dainty feet discreetly in the ooze; at its steep, slippery cliffs, whence one has such glorious breezy views of sea and rock and headland, and of the warm sheltered valley at one's feet.

Polperro attends to its own business, and that does not include catering to tourists. There are always artists at Polperro. They and the fishermen observe each other, become friends, perhaps; but business is not mentioned between them.

Clovelly fills a rock cleft on the north Devon shore as Polperro does upon the southern Cornish one, but there all comparisons end. Clovelly may be still an earnest fishing village, but her looks belie it. "The most exquisite village in England" some one called her, and she deserves the title.

From the coach-road where, at the top of the cliffs, you enter upon Clovelly's one street, to the sea; or, if you come by boat, from the harbor to Hobby Drive, and the public road, everything is dainty, elegant of its kind, groomed to impossible perfection. No whitewash gleams whiter or bluer or more delicately yellow than here at Clovelly; no roses, fuchsias, clematis, nor lilies bloom in more profusion; no trees are richer and greener, no vines more luxuriantly graceful than there. Never a bit of paper litters that one stony street, more staircase than roadway; no speck of dust mars shining windows or spotless curtains; no noise of railroads, of trolley cars, of traffic, breaks the soft stillness of this village of delight. Down the street goes a long procession of tourists arriving by coach from Bideford or Bescastle, stopping at every house to "Oh!" and "Ah!" and perhaps to buy souvenirs or to eat strawberries and cream.

Tintagel of Arthurican Legend.

At Tintagel more than at any place, perhaps, what we bring measures what we take away. Come full of the Arthurian legend; come with Tennyson, with Hawker, with Mallory, and, in spite of "modern criticism," you will savor nought but romance.

Here are the ruins of Tintagel about you; across the chasm the yet more formless remains of Terrabil, the twin fortresses known to the earliest Cornish earls, Roman, Saxon, Norman has built here; but it is not for architecture or archeology that one comes here; it is for romance.

Tintagel is not a port. Occasionally a boat comes in under the cliff with supplies for the village, but houses are few and there is little fishing. Port Isaac, farther down the coast, is a typical Cornish port. A steep carriage road descends to Port Isaac; and the little stone houses of the village cling to the sides of the ravine as best they can.

As a harbor we should not approve of it, yet it has served a fishing fleet for 400 years. Pleasant enough it is of a summer day, but in spring or autumn storm, when the waves come hurling in with appalling weight and force to suck out again, as if they would drag the village into the depths, when the fleet jockeys for hours in the trough of a vicious sea, unable to make the opening between the black cliffs, yet in constant peril of the surf, one can but wonder why men made a home there.

St. Ives sits by a smooth circle of sea into which a tongue of rocky land thrusts a bold curving headland, inclosing an inner harbor in the great sweep of the bay. Here by the sea dwells the "real" St. Ives, close-pressed, low-crouched, stone-built to withstand the many storms of sea and time.

At St. Ives we touch "modern conveniences" once more and can take a train—very reluctantly, we decide—back to London.

Two Men Killed in Blast at Buffalo

Explosion Razes Paraffin Works, Kills Two Employes and Rocks Wide Area in South Buffalo—Some Persons Slightly Injured.

Buffalo, N. Y., March 7 (AP).—An explosion which razed the paraffin works of the Atlas plant of the Standard Oil Company early today, brought death to two employes and rocked a wide area in South Buffalo. Damage to the plant was estimated at $350,000.

The bodies of Patrick Kirby, 46, and Clarence Christ, 37, were buried in the wreckage, and were extricated with difficulty. Christ was brought out alive an hour after the blast, but died on the way to the hospital. Kirby's body was found under a compressor tank after the ruins had cooled.

It was believed at first that other employes were missing, but R. T. Lockwood, assistant manager of the plant, later told the police that Kirby and Christ were the only two in the building at the time. The cause of the explosion he believed to be escaping gas under the structure.

The two victims were manning oil pumps in the paraffin works when the explosion occurred. Apparently it came without the slightest warning, although Christ had time to crawl under the compressor tank in an effort to escape falling debris. Kirby was thrown near the side of the wreckage and was only slightly burned.

Families in the neighborhood were thrown from their beds and some persons were slightly injured.

Farmer Murdered Helper Missing

Albany, N. Y., March 7 (AP)—Charles Reitz, a farmer at Bethlehem Center, five miles south of here, was found dead in his cow stable today with a gash on his head and his throat cut. Search was begun for Andrew Tillinger, employed by Reitz.

Reitz had been hit over the head with a milking stool and his throat cut afterward, State Troopers believed.

Mrs Reitz said that Tillinger and her husband were at the barn milking. After they had been there about an hour, she said Tillinger ran back to the house in apparent excitement, went to his room and then departed, carrying a small bundle with him.

When Mrs. Reitz went to the barn she found her husband's body. She said that Reitz had discovered a theft of money from the house earlier in the morning and he suspected Tillinger was responsible. It is believed that Reitz charged Tillinger with the theft, and was killed in a fight that followed.

Mrs. Maria Deyo, formerly of New Paltz, died March 3 at the home of her daughter, Mrs. C. C. Fisher, of Pittsburgh, Pa. She was the widow of Moses Deyo of New Paltz. Funeral services were held Saturday afternoon from the home of her niece, Mrs. Ralph Lyons, at Highland, with interment in the Lloyd Cemetery.

Carrie A. Legg, widow of P. E. TeBow, died early this morning at her home, No. 181 Washington avenue, after a brief illness. Funeral arrangements will be announced later. Mrs. TeBow is survived by one son, G. Burton TeBow, secretary and general manager of the Kingston Consolidated Railroad. Mrs. TeBow was taken suddenly ill about a week ago. For many years she was an active member of St. John's Church and was a woman who was held in high esteem by a large circle of friends.

The funeral of Maria Murray, widow of Michael Quirk, was held from the residence of her niece, Mrs. J. William Leary, 168 Wall street, Saturday, March 5, at 9:30 a. m., and at 10 o'clock a Mass of requiem for the repose of her soul was offered by the Rev. Louis M. Cusack at St. Joseph's Church. The Rev. Father Jordan of Wilbur was seated in the chancel. The interment was in St. Mary's Cemetery where the Rev. James A. Boyle officiated at the committal service. The bearers were E. Frank Flanagan, J. David Schenck, Edward B. Loughlan and Edward J. Cullen.

SCARLET FEVER CLOSES HIGHLAND HIGH SCHOOL.

The discovery of ten cases of scarlet fever among the pupils at the combined grade and high school at Highland has caused the school to be ordered closed for several days by Dr. Joseph Frenton, school physician. Eight cases were discovered Thursday and two more on Saturday. According to Dr. Frenton the disease is appearing in a mild form.

Three Die in Gu Fight With Mania

Two Others are Wounded as Re of Six-hour Attempt of Posse Men To Capture John Br Known To Be Demented.

Johnstown, Pa., March 7 (AP). Three men were dead and two oth were recovering from wounds to as a result of a six-hour attemp posse men to capture John Br 50, known to be demented, aft Bruno had barricaded himself in home at Beaverdale, near here, y terday.

The affray ended only when a b let fired by one of the posse posted in a church across the st from the besieged house, str Bruno beneath the heart, mort wounding him.

Before he fell, Bruno had shot killed Max Miller, 35, of Beaverda fatally wounded John Libertine, also of Beaverdale, and less serio ly wounded two others.

A case of mistaken identity led the shootings. Walter Coleman, Wilmore, drove into Beaverdale business and parked his car in fr of Bruno's house. Mistaking Co man for an officer, the demented fired three times at him but the b lets failed to take effect. Cole informed police and Constable Ho ard Plummer attempted to en Bruno's home and arrest him. T bullets dropped him, serio wounded.

Miller was shot dead at the ste ing wheel of Plummer's car wh he was attempting to drive aw Going to Miller's assistance, Lib tine was the next victim of Brun maniacal rage. He died in a lo hospital today.

The fourth victim was Oscar M horn, 31, a passerby, who wounded in the thigh.

County detectives and depu then were summoned and surroun ed the slayer's house Posse stationed at various points of v tage, including the United Breth Church across the street, poured steady fire into the house. After six-hour siege, Bruno's return f ceased. Police battered down door and found Bruno dead on a in a room on the second floor.

WHO ARE THE RICH?

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

COUNT your treasure, and I'll count mine,
And we shall see who the rich man is.
You begin with a dollar-sign,
And I'll begin with a baby's kiss
You put in all a house can hold,
All the splendor and all the gold,
I'll put in just a roof of thatch,
A bed, a table, a chair to match.

Count your treasure, and I'll count ours,
You the mansion upon the crags;
We have little but birds and flow'rs
And bread and butter, but mostly rags.
We have love, on a barren floor,
You have wealth, and but little more,
Counting over the things of his,
Which would you say the rich man is?

Neither of us, I am sure of that.
For who is rich who has naught of love?
And poor the lover who ever sat
In calm content with a leak above.
For love and lucre, and wealth and wit,
Go best together, I'm sure of it.
To gather either be not too loth—
The rich are those with a bit of both.

WHEN I WAS TWENTY-ONE

BY JOSEPH KAYE

At 21: Walter E. Frew, the Banker, Was Earning $33 a Month.

"AT TWENTY-ONE I was with the Wall Street brokerage firm of Shepherd, Knapp & Company, making $33 a month. My father was at one time fairly well-to-do, but during the Civil war, and the changes that followed it, his business was affected and never recovered.

"When I was sixteen my father saw that I would not be able to attend college; he was not well; he did not feel that he could see me through. So he got me the brokerage position. A year later he died. My brother and I took the little inheritance he left us and pooled it in a shipping venture, my first fling at finance. We lost every dollar. A year after my father's death I had nothing except my salary at the brokerage firm, which was $5 a week then.

"After working five years my salary of $33 a month was far from satisfactory, but I had the principal drawback of most young men—no ambition. My job was too pleasant; the hours were easy and the social connections obtained through the position attractive. But when I reached twenty-one I woke up to the realization that I was likely to continue making $33 a month for the remainder of my life. This—and a new head in the office with whom I could not get along—decided me to hunt for a new job. I got one with a bank that offered me $20 a month, in place of the $33 I had begun to think was not enough. But I resigned and took the $20 position and in this place I did the first real work of my career.—Walter E. Frew."

TODAY—Mr. Frew is president of the Corn Exchange bank of New York, a financial organization having about 60 branches with accounts in the neighborhood of 150,000. Besides this he is connected with numerous other institutions in a directorial capacity and is a famous national figure in banking. From the $20 job he got with the bank when he was twenty-one, Mr. Frew advanced to assistant cashier and gradually worked through the intermediary stages of finance until he reached his present position.

THE YOUNG LADY ACROSS THE WAY

The young lady across the way says the airplane is an old story now, and we hardly look up to see it when one goes by, but less than twenty years ago Luther Burbank was working in a bicycle repair shop and people laughed at his idea that the air could be conquered by man.

Young America Armored in Its Sophistication

Left to fend for himself, as he usually makes sure that he is left, the average young American is surprisingly precocious in getting his sea legs. If he has had free run through his last years in high school he has an armor of hardness at a [illegible] by the time he reaches college which his father probably did not possess at thirty and his mother may not yet possess.

If he doesn't have it at the beginning of his freshman year, he will by the end of it. People who still talk sentimentally of "the tender years," meaning the late teens, should read from sixty to one hundred themes a week for five years as I have done and should hold three hours a week of conference over anything from the placing of commas to the expediency of house parties.

At the end of a [illegible] I see that one feels that he knows what is in the heads and hearts of young people. And except for the rare young person who has come up in a home where the right-and-wrong standard was still rigorously applied, and whose case, just because he is not armored like his fellows, is very sad indeed, I do not worry greatly about the [illegible] of the standard which [illegible].

They know, these rouged and marceled seventeen year-olds, that there is a definite margin of "stuff you can't get by with," and they are careful not to allow any pretty sentiment or rash impulse to take them beyond that margin.—Avis D. Carlson in Harper's Magazine.

Trade Dollars

The trade dollar of 420 grains troy was authorized by the act of February 12, 1873. It was intended for circulation in oriental countries as a substitute for the Mexican dollar, which it slightly exceeded in weight, but by the terms of the authorizing act it was made legal tender in the United States in sums not exceeding $5. This legal tender quality was withdrawn by the joint resolution approved July 22, 1876, and the coinage was limited to such amount as the secretary of the treasury should consider sufficient to meet the export demand. The act of February 19, 1887, provided for the retirement of trade dollars or subsidiary silver. For six months after the passage of the act they could be exchanged at the treasury or any subtreasury, dollar for dollar, for standard silver dollars or subsidiary coin. The total number of trade dollars coined was [illegible].

Former Kingston Boy Made General

Col. Elmore Farrington Austin, Native of This City, Appointed Brigadier General and Assigned to Command 52nd Field Artillery Brigade.

Colonel Elmore Farrington Austin, for many years commanding officer of the 258th Field Artillery, New York National Guard, has been appointed brigadier general and assigned to command the 52nd Field Artillery Brigade, New York National Guard.

General Austin was born in Rondout, May 9, 1864, and while a resident of Kingston resided on West Chestnut street. He is a civil engineer by profession and deputy chief engineer for The Bronx. He is a Spanish War Veteran and received the Distinguished Service Medal and the State of New York Conspicuous Service Cross in the World War.

The 156th Field Artillery, the 1st Battalion of which is stationed in Kingston, is attached to the 52nd Field Artillery Brigade and will be at Pine Camp, N. Y., for its annual tour of field duty July 23 to August 6, at which time General Austin will also be there.

The current issue of The New York National Guardsman reviews General Austin's career and tells the story of successive advancements as follows:

In the Field Artillery much is taught concerning the element of surprise. It is endeavored to achieve this element in most artillery actions and this is the story of how one Artillery Commander learned of the effectiveness of this element by going to a surprise party.

Of course, he had had surprises before, many of them and all kinds of them, some startling, some mild, some disastrous, some pleasant and some just ordinary, but never had he had a surprise like the one of which this story concerns.

He had been on his way to this surprise for a very long time, too. Years and years, but he had never suspected it. Not even the slightest little bit.

He started toward this surprise away back in 1887 when on November 29th of that year he enlisted in Company B of the 71st Infantry, N. G. N. Y., and told his Commanding Officer that his name was Elmore F. Austin. He was just plain, ordinary Private Austin then. Hardly that though; no, we can't refer to him as having been that kind of a private any more than we could refer to the Great Napoleon as having been at one time a plain, ordinary Lieutenant of the French Army, for, like the Lieutenant Bonaparte, Private Austin was to be a man of destiny in the military affairs of his country, so, you see, that we can't refer to him as having ever been just a plain, ordinary private.

So much for that part in it. At any rate, there and then is when he started toward the great surprise of which we write. Seven years later, on May 14, 1894, we find that this man Austin has been successively and successfully a corporal, a sergeant and an ordnance Sergeant in Company B of the 71st, and that he is now captain of Company L of the 71st. A full fledged Captain now, no longer Private Elmore F. Austin. He was at that time seven years nearer the great surprise

Four years the Captain of Company L and then it was Major Austin, Engineers, 1st Brigade, N. G. N. Y., and four years nearer the great surprise because the date was then December 1, 1898.

Ten long years a Major and ten years nearer the great surprise. Then a Coolnel, C. A. C., N. G. N. Y. (8th C. D. C.), on February 24, 1908, until January 17, 1912. Four years here and four more years nearer—(you know—, we are coming to it).

Naturally next the rank of Brigadier General, Chief of Coast Artillery, N. G. N. Y., from January 17, 1912, to May 6, 1914. (Commanding Brigade and 8th C. D. C.).

Again the records show a Colonel, C. A. C., N. G. N. Y. (with rank from May 6, 1914, to July 16, 1917.) (8th C. D. C.) Nineteen Seventeen and the World War; overseas of course, then back home again and the date of record reads August 7, 1919. Colonel C. A. C., N. Y. G. (with rank from February 24, 1908), Commanding the 8th C. D. C., which was later changed to the 258th F. A.

All this in the service of his state, and as we glance at his record of federal service we are even greater impressed. We see a lot of interesting facts—Commander of Fort Totten—Commander of 57th Artillery—Commander, T. A. Replacement Battalion, 1st Army, A. E. F.—Heavy Artillery School, Angers—Brest in 1918. We see of his participation in five great offensives—

Las Guasimas Cuba—June 24, 1898.

Santiago de Cuba—July 1-2-3, 1898.

Bombardment of Santiago de Cuba —July 10-11, 1898.

Saint Mihiel—September 10 to September 20, 1918.

Meuse-Argonne—September 20 to October 16, 1918.

We see among his decorations the D. S. M., the C. S. C., the Long Service Medal and a long list of others; at any rate, too many to be worn at one time.

Just a moment now as we speak a word concerning the 258th F. A., Colonel Austin's present command. Some outfit you'll agree. A regiment, finely equipped and housed in the largest and finest armory in the land. A regiment in whose ranks once served Theodore Roosevelt and many other men of prominence in the affairs of this nation.

The 258th is proud of many things: of its record, of its traditions, of its commanding officer and of its history, a history as lasting as the stars. Above all these things, however, there is yet one thing of which the 258th is inordinately proud, one thing which it holds in reverence as its most priceless heritage and possession, its regimental insignia, the Coat of Arms of George Washington. That is their own, their very own, for are not they the original Washington Greys and isn't their proud claim true that they alone of all those in our nation's service are entitled to wear the shield so reminiscent of the Father of our Country? It's true indeed, and now for the surprise.

The evening of December 10, 1926, was just an ordinary Friday evening to Colonel Austin. He was at his desk as usual, thinking that his officers were in their schools studying orientation, communication and things like that. There, however, we have a difference of opinion and the Colonel had the great surprise.

The officers of the regiment did not think that it was just an ordinary Friday evening and they were not in school. They had recalled the fact that that night marked the close of twenty years' service on the part of Colonel Austin as commanding officer of the regiment. Twenty years in command of the 258th, the old 8th C. D. C., N. G. N. Y.

A sumptuous feast had been prepared. All of the officers and their wives were there. Every one knew except the colonel. He surely received a great surprise. It was the first and the only time that anything was ever "put over" on the colonel.

On behalf of the regiment the colonel was presented with a beautiful silken replica of the regimental standard, battle ribbons and all. Emblazoned in the field of the standard was the revered regimental insignia, the shield of Washington. It was a fitting presentation and a fitting gift of remembrance to the old Eighth's most illustrious commander.

Thus with an element of surprise was written a new chapter into the history of the 258th F. A.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

SONG OF MONEY

Money sings, as well as talks, for the column man of the Tifton (Ga.) Gazette—

"Sing a song of money—pockets full of dough; really it is funny how the dollars go.

Beware of Mouldy Litter

Straw, Hay, Clover, Chaff, etc., this season were in many cases wet when put away. Therefore, even though it may now be dry a large portion of it may be mouldy.

Mouldy litter is very dangerous for chicks. The chicks inhale the mould spores which develop very rapidly in their lungs causing the disease, Aspergillosis, sometimes called "brooder pneumonia."

This is a very serious disease which causes the death of large numbers of chicks when they are brooded on mouldy litter. Be careful of litter you use. A safe, sanitary litter that is satisfactory in every way is O. K. Poultry Litter which is made of imported peat.
